BRITISH GOVT PROTESTS AGAINS UNFAIR DEAL

NEW PLANT IS OPENED BY PREMIER

Hon. S. F. Tolmie Officiates at Formal Opening of the Victoria Cold Storage Company

ENTERPRISE OF PRESIDENT LAUDED

Mayor Anscomb Wishes Industry All Success, but Is Not in Favor of Bonusing by City

IN officially opening the new plant of the Victoria Cold Storage and Terminal Warehouse Company, Limited, Premier Tolmie yesterday congratulated Mr. H. G. Brown, president and organizer of the company, on his enterprise, and extended his best wishes for the success of the new industry. With cheap water transportation there was no reason, he said, why the people should not take full advantage of the plant and send produce all over the world.

Mayor Anscomb also wished the new undertaking the greatest possible success, but reiterated his view that the city should not bonus industries. That matter, he contended, was one for private capital to undertake.

About 150 leading public and business men of the city, as well as representative men from Vancouver and other centres, were guests at the gathering, and the band of the 6th Canadian Scottish, led by Mr. James Miller, played selections of music during the luncheon. Grace, porcupine to the occasion, was said by Rev. A. deB. Owen, and the toast to The King was duly honored.

Mr H. O. Brown, who opened the speaking, welcomed the guests and outlined the steps, which had led up to the establishment of the company, referred to the great importance of refrigerating methods in the world today, and thanked all those who had assisted in making the undertaking an accomplished fact. He believed that the people of his city and the Island would some day look upon the plant with pride.

ISLAND PRODUCTS

What," asked Mr. Brown, "is the use of ships coming into your port with cargoes of perishables if you are no plant to ship out perishables? That lack, he said, had made him when he first visited Victoria. Another logical question was: "What is Vancouver Island with her wonderful agricultural possibilities, and the fish in the ocean, doing to do with her surplus produce? How is she going to make possible for her farmers and her fishermen to market the fruits of their labor?"

Mr. Motherwell Highly Praises Mixed Farming

KELOWNA, Aug. 8.—Speaking at a banquet tendered him by the Board of Trade and the newly-formed Canadian Club on Monday night, Mr. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture congratulated the valley on the giant strides made during the past seven years through diversification of crops.

"Mixed farming with a specialty is sound practice," he stated. Referring to local problems, the minister said that every locality had troubles and as far as greater production for fruit through safe dumping was concerned, it was not necessarily a problem impossible of solution. The Government's policy would be "to protect the Canadian market for the Canadian grower without reducing the price to the consumer."

Through cold storage plants, at which there are twelve in Canada today for fruit and vegetables, the extension of work through experimental stations and investigation of the by-products possibilities, Mr. Motherwell felt that many problems were nearing successful solution.

Drowning Accident Takes Toll of Three Lives When Boat Capsizes Suddenly

NANAIMO, Aug. 6.—A woman and two children were drowned in a boating accident at Boat Harbor, eight miles southeast of Nanaimo, at 7:30 this evening, according to meager advices reaching here tonight. A Mrs. Minter, of Island Park, Burnaby; an eight-year-old boy named Cummings, and another boy whose name was not given, were the victims.

A three-year-old child, who was at first thought drowned, escaped. The four were boating about fifty yards from shore, when the boat in some way upset, throwing the three victims into the water, where they drowned. The three-year-old child did not fall out of the boat and was picked up safe in the craft some time later.

The only witness of the tragedy was Mrs. Cummings, the mother of at least one of the children. She was in a state of collapse tonight and could give no information.

Boat Harbor was the shipping point of the defunct Pacific Coast Coal Mines Company. Mrs. Cummings and her husband, who was watchman at the property were the only residents of the place. Mrs. Minter, sister of Mr. Cummings, was visiting the family.

Wheat Prices Crash at Winnipeg to Beat All Previous Records

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—One of the widest declines witnessed in the local wheat market in years occurred today, when prices dropped 10¼ cents to 6¾ cents below Saturday's final figures. Wheat slumped to a new low, wheat advanced to within 2 cents of Saturday's marks, only to be sent scurrying to the low levels as a flood of offerings struck the pit. Buyers were eager to realize their profits and the bears quickly took control of the market.

October wheat finished the day at 184¾, December at (8) and May at 188¾. At one period the October was as high as 193½, but this figure was not held for long.

AUSTRALIAN TREATY WAS NOT OPPOSED

Mr. R. B. Bennett Declares That Opposition Did Not Show Opposition to Pact—Flays Tariff Wall

ANTAGONISM WAS ONLY OF ER FORM

POWELL RIVER, Aug. 8.—Emphatic denial was made by Mr. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, in his speech here tonight, that his party had opposed the Australian trade agreement of 1925.

"Sometimes you have heard," Mr. Bennett exclaimed, "that the Conservative party opposed the trade agreement with Australia. That is not the case."

The Opposition had, he explained, pointed out that the effect of the treaty in the form sanctioned by the present Government, while beneficial to certain industries, was detrimental to the dairy industry of Canada. "Strange as it may sound," Mr. Bennett observed, "the Government afterwards realized it was so, and so they placed the dumping duty on dairy products of Australia, which were subsidized at home."

A BROKEN PROMISE

The seeds sown last year were purchased only a small quantity of the produce from Australia. But what did the Government do, Mr. Bennett proceeded. In 1926 Premier King, in a speech at Woodstock, Ont., had said that if the Australian Treaty were destroying the dairy industry he pledged himself in a minority when discussion of the question of division arose, would be willing to abandon his position on amendments which would compensation that the bank for international settlements be located in London.

IRISH BHOYS START CIVIL WAR IN CAMP

Ulster Raids Free State Boys and Both Have Great Fun in Struggle for the "Grouser"

FINISH UP WITH JOLLIFICATIONS

ARROW PARK, Eng., Aug. 8.—The Irish today started a "war" in England, when Ulster Boy Scouts raided the quarters of the Irish Free State Scouts at the International Jamboree.

The rough house was all in fun, of course, and ended by Scouts from Northern and Southern Ireland joining hands and singing Irish songs. The scuffle began last night when Ulster Scouts carried off a Free State effigy known as "The Grouser," which hung over the entrance to the Free State camp. The Ulster boys brought back "The Grouser" next morning to the Free State boys. The latter did not leave their challenge unanswered, but piled into the Ulster cohorts.

Rain had night made the camp muddier than ever today, but the constantly muddy condition of the camp ground has not affected the health of the 50,000 Scouts. Only 400 illnesses were reported for the week, of which 314 were hospital cases. Doctors said that in a similar camp of soldiers there would have been four times as many.

FOREST FIRES ARE QUENCHED BY RAINFALLS

Situation Much Better in Northern Ontario but Still Bad in Other Districts—Loss of Life Nil

ISLAND BLAZES ARE CONTROLLED

Forest fires in the Vancouver district were reported well under control by the British Columbia Forest Service tonight. Rains have fallen been reported in the region either Monday or Tuesday. Statements from Nanaimo indicated that all fires in the vicinity are quiet.

TORONTO, Aug. 8.—Heavy rains in Parkins and Thunder Bay Districts of Nor. ..ern Ontario have lessened the fire hazard in these sections considerably. Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forest, said today The situation in the Kenora area is worse due to lack of rain and the high winds of Sunday and Monday.

"Taking conditions on the whole we have been very fortunate," he said. "The situation is very much improved and we have had no loss of life or great damage to property. As far as is known, only one building, a barn, has been destroyed by the fires."

NELSON, Aug. 8.—While the Kootenay district has the largest number of old forest fires still burning, the situation is much better than for some time. Today several new blazes were reported by observers in the forestry planes. Most of the fires are under control.

EDMONTON, Aug. 8.—A more hopeful situation in regard to the forest fires which have been raging in the Athabasca forests for the past ten days, is reported by C. H. Morse, Calgary, District Inspector of Forest Reserves for Alberta. Rains fell during the week-end at most points where the fires have been raging, helping exhausted rangers to bring the fires under control.

Return Verdict On Shooting of David Spence

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8.—A coroner's jury today returned a verdict that David Spence had come to his death from a gunshot wound from a revolver in the hands of Alexander Kirkwood.

Spence, aged forty-five, a well-known former football player, was killed around midnight last night following an altercation with Kirkwood, who is the proprietor of a taxicab detective agency here. Kirkwood is at present held by police on a murder charge.

Horace Havord, an employee of Kirkwood's, was with him at the time of the shooting, said Kirkwood in a statement to newspapermen that he was arresting a hold-up man when Spence was shot.

C. Matson, one of three other witnesses to the shooting, testified that Spence had walked around the car, spoke loudly to the occupants and then walked up to the driver. Then, he said, Kirkwood followed Spence, tried to seize him and shot him.

GT. BRITAIN OBJECTS TO DEBTS PLAN

Mr. Snowden Declares in Favor of Young Proposals but Not of Division of Payments

OPPOSES PARIS EXPERTS' VIEW

Likely to Create Grave Issue Between British and Delegates of Other Great Powers

THE HAGUE, Aug. 8.—Mr. Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Labor Government, today thrust into the foreground of the 1929 conference of The Hague to make effective the Young plan, his Government's opposition to the repatriation of German reparations payments among the Allies as defined by the Young committee in its report.

Mr. Snowden informed delegations from eleven other nations that Great Britain was in favor of the principle of the Young plan, but was strongly opposed to the division of payments which the Paris experts had evolved.

PROPOSAL INDEFENSIBLE

"The new distribution of reparations proposed by the experts is indefensible, and I note the experts made no attempt to explain it," Mr. Snowden declared vigorously.

He affirmed that his Government was ready at any time to cancel all reparations payments and all war debts under the principles laid down by the Balfour note, but that, so long as reparations were to be received and debts to be paid, Great Britain intended to see that she received equitable treatment.

The British delegate said that under the distribution made by the financial experts in Paris, France got five-sixths of the negotiable part of reparations annuities and Italy received the equivalent of £10,000,000 more than she was allotted under the Dawes plan. Meanwhile, only small sums had been left to the lesser reparations creditors.

A SERIOUS ISSUE

Taken literally, the speech of the British delegate predicts a grave issue between Great Britain and the other principal reparations creditors, France, Italy and Belgium. At the same time it tends to line up the smaller creditors on the British side.

The Germans are strongly averse to putting into question the arrangement arrived at in the Paris financial experts. It is thought the smaller powers also would hesitate to ask for changes. Observers believe Mr. Snowden may find himself in a minority when discussion of the question of division ends, unless he willing to abandon his position on annuities with a proportionate compensation that the bank for international settlements be located in London.

"I will dance on your grave when you die!" said the angry wife.

"Splendid!" said her aggravating husband, "I'm going to be buried at sea!"

Dr. Constantine Hering Winpenny, the Pittsburgh therapeutist, said at a medical convention at Lincoln City.

"There's no better therapeutic agent than pure water. The Japanese know this. They drink quarts and quarts daily. And look at them. They're as hard as bullocks.

"Our people," Professor Winpenny went on, "won't drink enough water, and there's no way to make them drink it unless—and he chuckled gaily—"unless we prohibit it."

"We have," stated Mr. Brown, added the logical premise, "no shipping to use this first and last port of call on the Pacific by providing a cold storage plant which is the first and last word in refrigeration."

Mr. Brown told how he visited Ottawa with regard to the project, and that had an interview with one of the Cabinet ministers, who became greatly interested in it and gave him the fullest support. A few days afterwards he received a letter from the minister's secretary to the effect that the matter was being looked into. Two weeks later an order-in-council was passed for it.

He was asked, said Mr. Brown, whether he was a Conservative or a Liberal. The minister he referred to was interested in the development of the country. That minister he saw at Ottawa was now the Premier of British Columbia, the empire province of the British Empire. (Cheers.)

EXPERTS CONSULTED

"The first step in building this plant was taken two years ago when I brought to Victoria two of the world's most famous experts in refrigeration and port development," continued Mr. Brown. "I was assured by the experts that the project would be a success. He, himself, had never been connected with a failure, and he never intended to be."

The experts' enthusiasm for Victoria as a logical place for a cold storage plant, made him feel justified in giving Mayor Guy Construtt with a proposal, which the citizens of Victoria endorsed. It was this faith on the part of the citizens of this city which constituted the next step in the building of the cold storage plant. "In all proper ways, wherever possible, the money has been spent in Victoria materials from Victoria people, and not built with Victoria money."

Mr. Brown said the plant represented half a century of research in refrigeration, now one of the most important sciences of the day. He credited much of the success in overcoming problems to the loyalty and co-operation of friends present at the luncheon. "To these loyal co-workers, who have stood by me from the beginning, without anything to gain financially or pecuniarily, I would pay my most sincere tribute," he said, adding that he wanted to thank ex-Mayor Pendray for his loyal support, also the Chamber of Commerce, the aldermen, the press of the city, and the people who voted for the plant. Opposition, he considered, had been the result of lack of knowledge of what was happening in the world of refrigerating science, and the effect of this science upon modern business and port development.

REFRIGERATION TODAY

"We have," said Mr. Brown, "the telephone, the wireless, the aeroplane and the radio, and we say marvelous. But marvelous as are all these things, yet no science or invention has lent itself to a wider field of usefulness than has refrigeration—for it concerns the food of the people."

"Vast areas," continued the speaker, "have been developed to produce the world's finest fruits and vegetables, and it has only been made possible through the development of refrigeration. Distance means little, there is no longer a great market for berries, fish and meats. We need not live on the Coast to get fresh fish, nor in a hot climate to get citrus fruits. You can enjoy your favorite food the whole year round. Why? Because refrigeration has brought them to you—over the great railroads and transportation systems with their refrigerated cars, through the cold storage warehouse to the markets, and to you.

"Today there is scarcity an industry that does not use refrigeration, and many industries depend upon it absolutely for their existence. Rugs, carpets, tapestries and furniture are placed in cold storage for protection against moths. Raw silk is largely put into cold storage at the port cities of the Pacific Coast. . . . oil cures, drugs, and even films are put into cold storage."

CONTRACT SIGNED

The moment the citizens of Victoria sponsored the cold storage plant, went on Mr. Brown, they had been one point never absent from his mind—that being the financial stability of the project. "Work and effort," he said, "would be futile unless this plant had business to transact as soon as it was ready.

"On Saturday we signed a contract with the Island Parking Company. Limited, to put into storage for them 250,000 pounds of fish per year. We have agreed also to co-operate in developing what will be a new industry in Victoria—an industry which is in its infancy in this North American continent, the frozen package fish industry. The fish is brought straight to the cold storage plant by the fishing boats, filleted and frozen by the by-product system we have installed in this plant, which is the only system that can be used satisfactorily."

The first shipment of frozen fillets from Canada arrived in London recently, said Mr. Brown, and proved most successful. Toronto was consuming frozen fillets at the rate of a ton a day, is paying twenty a pound more for them than for fish straight from the sea. Vancouver Island, in her area, and the cold storage plant, in its operations, had vast potential greatness, he declared. Where, he asked, would this 6,000,000 pounds of fish go if Victoria had not a cold storage plant to deal with the supply?

"This, then, briefly outlined, is what we have accomplished up to the present time. We have built the most modern plant possible. We have assured its success by utilizing its space before it is actually in operation, and we have opened up the further possibilities to Victoria of this latest field in the marketing of her fish. We can, and we will eventually do the same for the fruitgrowers, the vegetable growers, the bulb growers, the egg producers, poultry raisers and the producers of all perishable commodities—if we are given the opportunity."

PREMIER TOLMIE

Premier Tolmie, after congratulating Mr. Brown on his enterprise in bringing together such a representative gathering, referred to the conditions existing before they had refrigeration. The old windjammers, he said, used to be filled first salted, tough, old bull meat and ancient eggs, and worse was very prevalent. Argentina could not make full use of its produce, but with the coming of chilling plants, that country was provisioned the Smithfield market, in London, with a large proportion of its fine beef.

"Today," said the Premier, "we find that fruits can be dribbled out to the consumer as required throughout the year, but I will recall," he added, "how they had to wait until cold weather to kill beef. They fared, in those days, for canned beef, hot, cold and hashed until they just hated to see it. In Summer time they ate mutton until they could hardly look a sheep in the face."

In referring to the great advance made in the freezing of produce, Dr. Tolmie expressed his pleasure that such a modern plant as that of the Cold Storage Company had been provided. "Whether it will be a great success," said the Premier, "depends upon our own people and what advantage they take of it." With cheap water transportation, there was no reason, he considered, why the people should not take full advantage of the plant and send out produce all over the world.

When he heard Mr. Brown, the Premier said, he believed he had a practical proposition, and that he had a good proposal. He did not think it would seriously interfere with other businesses here, and that with proper co-operation there would be no trouble. He congratulated Mr. Brown on his enterprise and extended his very best wishes, both for the success of the plant and that of Mr. Brown, whom he hoped would decide to come and live here.

MAYOR ANSCOMB

Mayor Ansomb thanked Mr. Brown for the very excellent luncheon. His thanks, he said, were tempered by the reflection that as the city had given a guarantee, and if Mr. Brown made a loss instead of a profit, the city would have to pay. (Laughter.)

"The Mayor emphasized the fact that he was not in any way opposed to a cold storage plant. He would, in fact, very much like to see forty or fifty of them. But at the same time, he was of opinion that the citizens of Victoria should not have bonused an industry. If Mr. Brown had been so satisfied that the industry would be a great financial success, then he thought that private capital should have been available for it. He had been informed, he said, that plans were in preparation for extensions next year of the cold storage plant.

"The Mayor said he understood that Mr. Brown's company had a working arrangement with the other cold storage plant, and he hoped plans would be carried out satisfactory to all parties. He wished Mr. Brown the very best of luck in his undertaking, and hoped that his arrangements with Mr. Isaacs, president of the Island Parking Company, Limited, would be all he wished they would be, and a little more.

Mr. B. C. Nicholas expressed the congratulations of the Chamber of Commerce to Mr. Brown on the establishment of the plant and for his success in making a large contract for space prior to the opening of the plant. The chamber had been largely responsible for the allocation of the site. He hoped that the plant would be a great success. Mr Nicholas welcomed at the meeting Mr. C. W. Bowry, second vice-president of the Toronto Board of Trade, and Mr. John E. Payne, "the very able and energetic secretary of the Vancouver Board of Trade, and Mr. John E. Noble, manager of the British Columbia Fire Underwriters' Association, who was also present.

The Premier then pressed the button which set the machinery of the plant in operation, and expressed his pleasure at declaring the plant officially open. Mr. Brown thanked the gathering for its attendance, and stated that the plant was now open for inspection. The guests then made an inspection of the large building and village from the top table at the luncheon, at the same table with the Premier: the Mayor and Mr. Brown, were: Mr. S. H. Pendray, K.C., Attorney-General; Aldermen Marchant, Worcester, Worthington, Mars and Litchfield, Mr H Dwyard Tway, M.P.P., Mr. C. Pendray, Mr J. O. Cameron and Rev. A. deB Owen.

POWER ISSUE SEES CHANGE BY PROPOSAL

judge River to the Utilities Commission.

PUNTLEDGE DEVELOPMENT

This power development provides a minimum of some 12,000 horsepower and a maximum of 22,000 horsepower. The dam which provides for the power is situate near Comox Lake, and the lake is used as a storage supply. This plant was commenced in 1911 for the purpose of allowing the colliery company to abandon a steam plant, and during 1913 the Comox Collieries have been electrically operated throughout.

In addition to the collieries, the power was used for Courtenay municipal plant, and for Cumberland and Royston electric light companies.

In the area within which the colliery company seeks to extend its franchise, and which it is expected will be transferred to the Utilities Commission, there are a few independent cities. However, their franchises are already in the hands of one or other of the companies seeking the Campbell River franchise.

Allusion has been made to the interests within the area controlled by the Canadian Utilities. The B.C. Electric Railway Company, on June 21 took over the recently formed National Utilities Corporation, that company owned or controlled the following holdings: Port Alberni and Alberni electric light plants, Cumberland and Union Waterworks Company, Royston Light and Power Company, and the Nanaimo Power & Heating Company.

With the Campbell River power development project still in abeyance awaiting the decision of the Government, the situation is somewhat confusing regarding power on Vancouver Island. It had been expected that an announcement of development would be forthcoming yesterday when the executive council met, but it has been deferred until the return of the Minister of Lands, Hon. P. P. Burden, probably tomorrow.

DIES FROM BURNS

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—Charles J. Ferguson, forty-seven, Chopin, Ont., died in hospital here today from severe burns received when he came in contact with a high voltage power cable on Sunday night. Redfern, according to the police, climbed a steel power-line tower and as he put out his hand to grasp one of the wires he was immediately enveloped in flames and fell thirty feet to the ground. He failed to regain consciousness.

Should Lure Fish With Radium Hook States Scientist

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Science gave fishermen something new to play with when would-be anglers were made of the successful use there last week of radium as a lure for deep-sea fishing.

The radium was used by William Beebe, New York naturalist, as a phosphorescent coating on hooks attached to lines about a mile long, in depth where no daylight exists. The first catch was a squid, a member of the octopus family. It was large enough to fill a fair-sized fish basket.

The consequence of the order-in-council was that 200,000,000 pounds of butter were imported into this country last year. "Canada now has 101,000 fewer cows as a result," the Conservative leader declared, "and New Zealand has 84,000 more cows." Our dairy industry was destroyed and the Dominion now depends on New Zealand for her butter supply.

DUE TO MR. STEVENS

"The agreement is not a Australian Treaty," Mr. Bennett emphasized. "Credit is attributed to Hon. H. H. Stevens, who was minister in the Conservative administration in 1924." The Conservative party had been defeated at the polls in that year, he remarked, and a Liberal Government had taken up the negotiations and put through the treaty. No country could afford to undertake anything that destroy its industries, he said later, in urging a national policy for Canada.

Mr Bennett emphasized the Government policy regarding industry in Canada. In the early part of last session, the production was small. "But suddenly," he stated, "the raw materials of other countries became exhausted. People looked then to Canada to make in our forests."

Capital was attracted but, owing to misunderstanding, lack of appreciation of conditions, failure to develop our markets, together with the war, brought on disaster in the country. Today this country, though, was the greatest producer of newsprint in the world, next to farm products. It represented our greatest exports.

SURPLUS NEWSPRINT

"Because," he said, "we have surplus newsprint and pulp these products are wanted. Why had not Canada been able to make and export the fine grades of paper, Mr Bennett asked? Because, Canada proceeded, "the United States have imposed a tariff so high we cannot make and set these goods across the frontier." The tariff decided as a matter of policy, both Republicans and Democrats, not to let in goods if the effect is to displace their own products."

General A. D. McRae declared the industrial life of Canada would be increased many fold under a "proper policy."

"Today," he said, "we are the greatest newsprint country in the world."

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT

Mr. Marler was elected to the House of Commons for Canada for the constituency of St. Lawrence-St George, Montreal, in 1921. In the following year he was chairman of the parliamentary committee on Soldiers' Pensions and Civil Re-establishment. He served as chairman of the committee of transportation in the negotiations which created the trade agreement between Canada and the British West Indies, 1925. Mr. Marler took an active part in the last revision of the Black Act, and made several extensive studies as regards railway, finance and tariff questions.

In 1925, Mr. Marler was sworn a member of the Privy Council of Canada and called to the cabinet of Premier Mackenzie King, but was defeated in the general election of that year, and resigned from the ministry.

This year Mr Marler was appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Dominion of Canada at Tokio, Japan, because the prime minister to represent Canada in the Orient.

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 6.—Ten persons were burned in an automobile near here tonight, five of them probably fatally. Trapped in a closed car that became a veritable furnace when it overturned in a ditch, two women and three children were the most severely hurt. VICTORIA WILL BE AMONG SIX CHOSEN PLACES

Canadian Pacific Hotel System to Stage Series of Concerts This Winter—Yule Festival Here

BRITISH MUSIC TO BE FEATURED

Canadian Pacific hotels, from Toronto to Victoria, will be a focal point of a series of concerts of British music commencing September 16 and running until April of next year, organized by the music department of the system. The hotels will be the Royal York, Toronto, the Royal Alexandra, Winnipeg; the Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina; the Palliser Hotel, Calgary; the Vancouver Hotel, Vancouver, and the Empress Hotel, Victoria.

NOTED MUSICIANS

The artists engaged will be Marjory Kennedy-Fraser in songs of the Hebrides; with Margaret Kennedy at the piano; Stanley Maxted, tenor, and Mary Frances James, soprano; Florence Hood, violinist, Jean Rowe, soprano, with Winnifred MacMillan at the piano; John Coates, baritone; the Hart House Quartette and Rodolphe Plamondon, tenor, with Lucien Plamondon, cellist.

The repertory of these artists will be exclusively British, and will be drawn from some of the leading composers of music and songs in the Empire. As an example, the songs of the Hebrides will be rendered by Marjory Kennedy-Fraser, an artist who has in long years of research unlocked a veritable treasure of Hebrides unknown folk song. Stanley Maxted, an internationally famed tenor (now living in Montreal) and Jean Rowe, lyric soprano, hails from Toronto. Rodolphe Plamondon, a French-Canadian tenor, and his son, Lucien, solo cellist at the famous Touche concerts in Paris, will give a distinguished programme. John Goss, English baritone, is acknowledged of the highest class in sea chanteys. Margaret Kennedy and Winnifred MacMillan, both Canadians, are highly talented pianists, while the Hart House Quartette has made a name honored wherever chamber music is played.

YULE FESTIVAL HERE

While Canada is by no means neglected in the matter of concerts during the music season each year, this country has not, so far, had its full share of the wealth of British music that of late years has been uncovered after centuries of neglect, or that has been composed by native musicians. There is an immense store of delicious French-Canadian songs, the beauty of which the Quebec music festivals of late years have done much to bring to the attention of concert-goers. The old sea songs were revealed to Canadians at the Vancouver Sea Festival early this year, and anthems down the ages were given at the Yule Festival at Victoria last December. These may be regarded as the beginnings of an effort to draw the attention of Canadians to the beauties of the music that could be drawn from British and Empire sources. The success of the effort was indicated by the wide popularity enjoyed by these earlier concerts and it has led to the organization by the Canadian Pacific music departments of the series of concerts across the Dominion, some details of which are given above. It seems only fair to conclude that the coming six months of concert season will witness the most fruitful and systematic attempt to popularize British music that has been made so far in the musical history of the Dominion.

SIXTY-ONE active years in railroading is the record of W J Grant, district freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Hamilton, and this length of service is claimed never to have been reached by any other railwayman in the Dominion. Mr. Grant has just retired, and forty-six of his sixty-one years of service have been with the C.P.R. At the same time J. F. Clancy, assistant foreign freight agent of the C.P.R. at Toronto, has also retired after forty-five years of service with the Allan Steamship Line and the Canadian Pacific. Between them they have completed 106 years in railway service. Photographs show, left, Mr. Grant; right, Mr. Clancy; and below, J. W. CLASSES MAY BE ORGANIZED HERE

Mr. M. C. Robinson Tells Kiwanis Club of "high saving" Work of Institute in Public Schools

Establishment of a "sight-saving" class in the public schools here by the Canadian Institute for the Blind to assist children with weak vision was forecasted yesterday by Mr. Merrill C Robinson, of Vancouver, Western superintendent of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, in addressing members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon meeting in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Robinson told of the assistance the institute had given in the prevention of "sight-saving" classes in public schools, and said that children reported by doctors to have poor vision who had attended these classes had been blessed with improvement in their eyesight. Such work as this, he stated, aided in decreasing the amount of blindness throughout Canada.

"One of the reasons why I am now in Victoria is to try and secure a concession stand at the Jubilee Hospital for a blind resident of this city, and also to induce the Provincial Government to erect refreshment stands in one of its institutions in order to place another blind man in a remunerative position. Each one of these placements will be another victory over blindness," he declared.

The speaker told of the possibilities which come within the scope of blind people and of the successful participation of sightless people in employment in various lines of industry and business. He outlined the work of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, and asked Victoria business men to give their cooperation in the placing of blind residents of this community in remunerative work.

SALEM CONVENTION

Vice-President Donald McAdie urged a strong delegation from the local Kiwanis Club at the Pacific Northwest Kiwanis District Convention, which will be held at Salem, Oregon, on August 16, 17 and 18. Victoria will make a strong bid for the 1930 convention.

The second interservice clubs golf tournament for the T. O. Mackay Trophy will be played this afternoon at the Colwood golf links, commencing at 1 o'clock. It was announced. The present holder of the silverware is Mr. Victor Mouton, a member of the Kiwanis Club.

Kiwanian Arthur R. Denny was warmly welcomed upon his return from a trip to the Old Country. It was stated that Dr. W. A. Burnett, of Vancouver, would address next week's meeting of the club.

HALF OF CITY BLOCK GOES TO NEW OWNER

Property on North Side of Post office Purchased by California Realtor

Half the city block at the north side of the Pacific Ave. with a frontage on three streets, was yesterday purchased by Mr. Harry Leach, the well-known California realtor.

The property has a frontage of ninety feet on Wharf Street, seventy-three feet on Courtney Street and eight feet on Langley Street, and Mr. Leach stated that considerable development was under discussion for the property. Last year the property, it is understood, was considered in proposals for a twenty-story high-class hotel, with underground connection to the C.P.R. dock.

In connection with the purchase Mr. Leach points out that next year the C.N.R. will have its new, fast Coast boats here and will put them on the triangular service between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle, and in addition give connection "from this site to Northern British Columbia and Alaska. It does not need that anyone should be an optimist, he says, to realize what this property will be worth in another year.

Mr. C. E. Yearwood, downtown property specialist of Messrs. Pemberton & Son, put through the transaction, and he also arranged the sale to Mr. J. D. Keenan, of Santa Monica, of 120 feet on the north side of Courtney Street, near Blanchard Street, and adjoining the Y.W.C.A., said to have been bought as an investment.

KASLO-SLOCAN MEMBER VISITS

Capt. J. Fitzsimmons, member for the district of Kaslo-Slocan, is in the city for a few days. He says the Government matters affecting his district he will spend a day or two in the capital.

Capt. Fitzsimmons says that the prolonged dry weather in his district is having its effect in the increasing of the fire hazard there. Some timber bad fires are raging. The situation is aggravated by the lack of water this season and by the fact that it is very difficult in some instances to get materials and men into the parts affected.

"It says here that the Japanese can cook rice more than two hundred ways."

"No can my wife. But none of them are right."

AN ALKALINE DIET FOR SUMMER—AND WHY?

Alkali means the opposite of acid. The blood contains both, but the alkalis must predominate or the body becomes acid, and it soon changed to alkaline. Grains have acid-forming and alkali-forming foods. Civilized people eat mostly acid-forming foods, which is the basic cause of many of our diseases. Alkaline foods will prevent these diseases and promote recovery from them. Alkaline-forming foods are fruits, vegetables, milk and Roman Meal. Roman Meal is the only alkaline-forming grain food, because it is a starter alkaline factor. Dr. Robert Jackson devised it twenty years ago. Roman Meal is a food that up to die from acid accumulation due to acid-forming foods. Although he had been a broken man for years now at past seventy he can run five miles in forty-five minutes, go through a Winter wearing no overcoat, vest or underclothes, take a cold bath at 5 a.m. and dry himself in the wind at an open window—enormous resisting power and strength due to Roman Meal. It is delicious uncooked. Get recipe on package. Write for his free booklet and sample Roman Meal to ROBT. O. JACKSON, M.D., 215 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont. (Adv.)

ALL DISTRICTS SHOW INCREASE

Report Is Issued on Results of Egg Pool in B.C. for Four Months—Figures in Dozens for the Island

EXPORT MARKET TO BE DEVELOPED

The four branches of the British Columbia egg pool on Vancouver Island have supplied the following dozens of eggs to the pool in the two periods of two months each, which have elapsed since the system was inaugurated on the Lower Mainland and Island.

	First period	Second period
Victoria	32,221	58,175
Duncan	44,470	68,734
Nanaimo	43,094	65,016
Courtenay	30,168	36,086

The total in dozens for the eight branches (Vancouver, New Westminster, Cloverdale and Abbotsford are those on the Lower Mainland) in the first period was 1,937,670, and in the second period 1,277,816.

Pool prices as paid during the period of the last two months were: Extras, 23 1-2 cents; firsts, 20 1-2 cents; pullet extras, 18 cents; seconds, 17 1-2 cents; cracks, 16 1-2 cents; and ends, 11 1-2 cents.

Officers of the British Columbia pool report an over-production of eggs in Canada, and more active steps are being taken to improve the export market, according to the report furnished to the press. It is proposed to store for foreign trade, both in Eastern and Western Canada.

The completion of the second period of the pool finds the market in an unfortunate condition. Production has been higher throughout the Dominion generally than in previous years, and the recent warm weather has increased the prospect. Old Country orders are improving.

Gravediggers' Strike Compels Trench Burials

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Temporary burial of the dead in trenches was resorted to today at Calvary Cemetery, in Queens, where a week-old strike of grave diggers resulted in accumulation of 600 bodies. Since the start of the strike bodies have been placed in the cemeteries in temporary receiving vaults which have accommodation for nearly 1,000 bodies. Under the law however, a body must be buried within four days after death. Some of the week-end men were employed at digging three long trenches.

There are between 600 and 700 men involved. They have demanded recognition of their union and an increase in salary from an average of $24.20 a week to $7 a day, with double time on Sundays.

BANKER VISITS

Mr. C. W. Rowley, Former Executive Officer of Canadian Bank of Commerce, Is Here

Mr. Charles W. Rowley, well-known banker, and former assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce is visiting in the city. He stresses the point that while the West was formerly regarded as a strictly agricultural country, bound up in its grain crop, the tremendous expansion in manufacturing has prevented the prejudicial effect of a smaller crop, such as would be occasioned by the actual conditions on the Prairie.

Mr. Rowley, who is president of the Alliance Investment Company, of Toronto, is registered at the Empress Hotel with Mrs. Rowley and their daughter.

The visitor continues his interest in public matters, is vice-president of the Navy League of Canada, and holds the same office in the Toronto Board of Trade.

Ontario Government Is to Raise Foxes

Realizing the importance of silver fox farming, the Ontario Government has acquired a 100-acre farm for the purpose of consultation and experimental fur farming station, according to word received here.

Dr. J. A. Allen, prominent Prince Edward Fur farmer and member of resident of Manitoba, has left for Lackapur, Colo., for the purpose of conducting classes in fox raising there.

The country lady was not used to rail travel and pestered the conductor a good deal. Finally she asked: "Are you sure the train will stop if you pull that rope?"

"Oh yes, mam."

"Well, how does it work?"

"You see, the other end is around the engineer's neck."

GERMANY'S RESURGENCE

Germany has embarked on a policy of world-wide advertisement which is already proving an asset to her during the period of reconstruction and rehabilitation after the setback she received by defeat in the Great War. She has provided a vessel in the Bremen which has broken the transatlantic record both ways. In doing this she has given an example of shipbuilding prowess which will undoubtedly reap its reward in traffic. Now she is making an effort for the conquest of the air, the Graf Zeppelin being about to commence a voyage which is to extend around the world. Germany since the war, and especially during recent years, has become imbued more than ever with the doctrine of self-advertisement, and it is a doctrine which she is applying assiduously to her trade. She is recovering her markets at a prodigious rate. Her finances have been re-established. She is winning back her place in the sun in a more rapid way than could have been deemed possible considering her position in 1918. All this has been accomplished in a little over a decade. In what she has done Germany has proved herself a remarkable example of recuperative power.

From the standpoint of the other nations the rise of Germany is significant if it enables that country to pay the reparations which she has been mulcted as an outcome of the War. German diplomacy is still a strong factor in European affairs, because she has succeeded, in a time of prosperity, in having her reparation payments whittled down from the original estimate of what they should be. With the progress Germany is making there is little doubt that she can meet her reparation payments without difficulty, though the certainty is that before many years have passed a new conference will be summoned to reduce her obligations still further. The recovery that France made from the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 was one of the economic marvels of the time. Its memory is paling into insignificance in comparison with what Germany is accomplishing after a greater debacle. It is only a question of a comparatively few years before Germany will be as powerful in the councils of the world as she was in 1914. Even the restrictions imposed by the Peace of Versailles have failed to stay her uprise.

DEPARTMENTAL HEADS

An undercurrent of reproach exists in some quarters against the present Provincial Government because, since it assumed office, it has not sacrificed departmental heads on the altar of party politics. It would have been bad business, indeed, if it had adopted the advice of some of its most ardent supporters. When the Government assumed office every one of its Ministers was new to Cabinet position in British Columbia. Not only had each had all to learn the duties of office but they have had to rely on departmental heads for advice in the vast majority of cases, whether as affecting new policies or dealing with the routine of administrative duties.

The fact of the matter is that the administrative heads, apart from some we mean the deputy ministers, had proved their efficiency before the present Government took office. Some of them had there extolled as reason why their positions should be interfered with in any way. They have proved themselves loyal to the Government and a source of strength, as they are expected to be, to Ministers who were wholly new to their duties when they assumed office nearly twelve months ago. The Ministers now know their administrative parts, and in knowing them they have learned to value the services rendered them by their deputies and by others in the Government employ who have executive duties to perform.

It is altogether in favor of good government that there should be permanent executives, and by that we mean that no change in those who hold of the work, and very much of the responsibility, falls on the shoulders of those whom partisan politicians wish to see disciplined the moment there is a change of party in office. The Government is to be congratulated on not having listened to the outcry of its two Labor-Labor supporters. An efficient administration, looking at it does on the matter from behind the scenes, it must itself remain the best judge of what is the right thing to be done. It has found its deputy ministers and other executives efficient and loyal and they retained their services. It could not have done otherwise if justice is its ruling motto.

DEATH DUTIES IN ADVANCE

When Sir Austen Chamberlain was Chancellor of the Exchequer, he had occasion to be greatly surprised when the late Lord Beaverbrook approached him and offered to compound for a portion of his huge fortune to the Treasury, provided the amount could be credited to his estate in payment of death duties when he died. Here ever, Sir Austen would not entertain the proposal for a moment. No doubt, on an actuarial basis, the Chancellor reckoned that the Exchequer would benefit by a policy of waiting. Now another peer has come forward with a similar cash-down proposal, and Mr. Philip Snowden, the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, has stated in the House of Commons that he will consider whether it might be desirable in the public interest to extend the present facilities for the payment of death duties by this method.

This brings to light the curious fact that many extremely wealthy men are anxious to pay their death duties in advance, so that their estates may not be encumbered, as they are now, when they die. They argue that in the case of a very large fortune the sums payable in income tax and super-tax are so large that they might just as well surrender a large slice of their capital and be done with it. They argue further that if the Treasury had these large sums now the vast burden of the nation's debt could be reduced, and the crushing amount of interest thereon would not hamstring the nation as it does at present. Treasury officials, however, have been pointing out that while this is so, the decrease in the sums held by multi-millionaires would be accompanied by a corresponding decrease in super-tax receipts. To this the rich men retort that the super-tax is chiefly due to the heavy interest payable on British debts, and that with the extinction of the debts the need for the super-tax would diminish also.

The view of The News of the World, which has made a careful examination of the whole suggestion is that the real danger in allowing rich men to pay death duties in advance is that the money might not be applied to debt reduction, but be dissipated in all sorts of popular schemes of the vote-catching nature, so that the burden of debt would remain, while the death duties would cease to be payable, having already been received by the Exchequer. It is, however, a rather piquant situation to find wealthy men anxious for the Treasury to take their money, and the Treasury hesitating to comply with their demand. It would not be surprising to find Mr. Snowden eventually condescending to accept the proffered cash. The proposals have such a "capital levy" flavor about them that it is hard to envisage a Socialistic Chancellor refusing them.

UNWORTHY CRITICISM

Some statements made in and innuendos that might be inferred from other statements in a letter from Mr Isaac Somers, of Beaver Creek, appearing in yesterday's issue, deserve refutation. Mr. Somers is on safe ground in attacking the single tax method of taxation in Saanich; but his implication of "graft" in municipal government is wholly unwarranted, most certainly so far as Saanich is concerned. Probably he did not mean Saanich at all but was speaking in a generic way, but the letter conveys a wholly false impression. It could have achieved its object differently worded.

Saanich municipal politics throughout the history of that municipality have been honest and straightforward. The taxation system may have been at fault, but it was designed in an honest endeavor to promote municipal welfare. Belittling of the existing laws and constitution, or, indeed, of previous municipal government, is beside the mark. Mr. Somers is a very old subscriber of The Colonist's and he will take this criticism of his letter in good part. He is such a keen opponent of the single tax system that in commenting on it in yesterday's paper he was on autrun his discretion and he has used terms that are not applicable to the situation that exists in Saanich. No one who knows Beaver Creek could believe for a moment that in all his municipal policies he is not actuated by the very best motives.

The prevalence of forest fires in British Columbia during the present Summer and the damage they have done ought to be a new warning to the Government that afforestation on a large scale is needed. Some percentage of the existing taxation, not a new tax, should be earmarked for this purpose. There is had been lack of vision for too long where our timber resources are concerned.

EMPIRE MARKETS

Half the exports of manufactures from these islands are now sold in the British Empire, and a movement's reflection should be sufficient to convince any reasonable person that the measure of prosperity now enjoyed here would be impossible but for the fact that a preponderate share of the British trade trade is supplied by the Mother Country. Natural analogy to secure easier access to European markets must never be allowed to blind British statesmen to the supreme importance of the Empire as an outlet for British factories and workshops.—London Times Trade Supplement

Note and Comment

By R. B. B.

We are told that the distinguished writers of England have asked a petition to the Pope to place a distinguished writer of Canada we would not dare to ask. What would the consequence be, for instance, if we were to put this question to the people of British Columbia in particular and the people of Canada in general "Is Hell a Reality?" After making notes of the several responses being bitterly waged in church circles in England on subjects that so mere laymen dare to mutter about, we might ask somebody to tell us if he could why it is that saints appear to be more quarrelsome than sinners; but if we were to ask such a question as "Is Hell a Reality?" not only would we be recklessly inviting trouble for ourselves, we would be opening the door for a chain of torment for the entrance of the editor.

* * *

The question asked by the distinguished writers of England is hardly ever asked in the churches nowadays, and surely the churches not the newspapers, are the proper places for the discussion of such a highly controversial question. You of course have read the story of the old North Countryman who lay on his dying bed and whose pastor was administering the consolations of religion. The ghostly consoler was a man of liberal theological views and hinted that there was some doubt as to the fate of such an unknown realms to fear from either Hell or Devil, for in a liberal theological conception of Hell the dying man was a fundamentalist and as firm in the faith as if he had been reared in the mountains of Tennessee or sat at the feet of our friend Ad Marchant. He also had been reared in and the spiritual consolation of the life he was about to surrender to the inexorable conqueror was that there was a sulphur place prepared for his enemy. So he signed to the parson to incline his ear and whispered with his last breath: "You may take away everything else, but leave me my hell!"

* * *

If the above were a proper subject for discussion in a strictly secular paper, which it is not, the discussion might be forgiven for pointing out that if the devil is not a reality but a theological abstraction, as taught by the advanced theologians of our own times, what is the use of the distinguished writers of the British press asking such a question! If the churches have abolished Hell and Satan, not in a positive sense, of course, but in a negative sense, by simply ignoring him in their sermons, it would seem that the devil must be an abstraction too—and there is an end of the whole debatable matter.

* * *

Nevertheless, being also from the North Country, like the old chap, we are loath to give up our belief in Hell, but only for similar reasons. If we have any enemies, we are not so blind in our enmity as to hope to see them from the better place prepared for us hanging by thumbs over the fire, the place that never die and "roasting like herrings." So we find that we are too selfish to this question, and both sides are more or less mated by the adjudicators singularly deficient in the common qualities of humanity, so they might agree about human justice at all.

"In one of the articles of the British composition we are told that it is surely not repugnant to the moral sense of God that there should be dies unrepentant of any one of a number of acts, such as murder, fraud, 'grinding the faces of the poor,' or 'the much and enormous crimes of humanity' should be punished in Hell. We might agree for the sake of argument that the culprit in these cases was consigned to the right place, but what we have to consider is the length of the sentence — Eternity. Just as no human mind can conceive of eternity, so no human crime can merit eternal punishment, even mild punishment, leaving out of account the ferocious treatment generally ascribed to Satan and his fellow inhabitants of Hell. For this reason, then, the assertion that the sentence is eternal overshoots the limits even of credulity, say nothing at all about intelligence, and suggests that the Eternal inventors of the idea lived in an age of extreme judicial tyranny, for, of course, in the case. This fiery idea of Hell was in fact born in the Middle Ages and even received extended graphic treatment from the immortal Dante, who described a personally conducted tour through the thunderfarer of Hell, and the frightful things he saw being done there to a multitude of miserable sinners. All this, however, must have stopped long ago, and Hell, if it exists, regales can only be burnt-out cinders now. Because in five hundred years we really have come on a bit."

At Brentwood Bay When the Sun Sets

By V. C. B.

With a last lingering look, stop the morning glories and Golden Goddess cuttews "Good-night." Through this is good, as sea and the sky, the trees and mountains are loath to bug to themselves her glowing splendor. The blue of the distant hills merges into the purple mountains; the blue of the sea mingles with the golden.

Upon a gleaming floor comes the Goddess of Night and her companions; in glorious purples, blues and greens. Hither and thither they flaunt their diaphanous drapery as they dance on the yellow floor spread daily with sunshine.

But now a gentle breeze breaks the day's quietude. Gently it blows, hence shreds a softening spell or a land and sea, and, as if in response to a yearning for some spot wherein to shake one's thirst, the desert sea parts: there appears a tiny oasis of tenderest blue and, the complete one's happiness, it is hedged by an hedge of purple trees. One rises instinctively, with a longing to reach the shelter of an alluring spot in the midst of such burning sands.

But stay! Gradually the blue of the oasis encroches upon the golden; the purple hedge, until hallow by hill and bay. The fickle waters of the Goddess have turned golden topaz to seduce her rival the sapphire; and, as each realm of color struggles for supremacy, out from the bay at the south steams a little yacht, sable black in the now less fading light.

The illusion is broken! For she drives aside the sands of the golden desert; sheds the waters of the rippling pool and, emerging from trees that screen the oasis, steams ahead into falling darkness—and the night.

A RECORD

A record should be kept always
Of what we lose or gain.
A record of unfulfilled days
And aimless hours of pain
And we must put by that little deed
To darker entries there:
But, ah! how often we should read
Of joyous times and fair
For all the failures we make,
We never need despair:
But we need to each mistake
To find the reason there.
Then on and onward, let the go to turn
To some grind hour again.
And from the mistakes to learn
How little power has pain

THE FISHERIES TREATY

Sir,—Re the treaty between Canada and the sympathy on behalf of same by the Editor of The Victoria Daily Times, The Vancouver Province and The Vancouver Sun, I would like to draw your attention to the once-prosperous sealing industry, which comprised about forty sealing ships and in the elder—and fuller-bodied—ideas of Hell it is apparent that the relationship between the punishment and the crime was estimated by adjudicators singularly deficient in the common qualities of humanity, so they might agree about human justice at all.

"In one of the articles of the British composition we are told that it is surely not repugnant to the moral sense of God that there should be dies unrepentant of any one of a number of acts, such as murder, fraud, 'grinding the faces of the poor,' or 'the much and enormous crimes of humanity' should be punished in Hell. Jots From History

LORD Cornwallis, who upon Washington during the Revolutionary War, and who surrendered all hope of British success in the war by Yorktown in 1781, was born in 1738. At the outset of the conflict he was openly opposed to war, but when commanded, came with the movement to America. Disgusted by the lack of co-operation given him by Howe at one stage of the conflict, he resigned, but his resignation was not accepted. After the settling of the war he was made Governor-General of India, where he performed brilliant service. He was later appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, but was finally sent back to India, where he died in 1805.

FISHING TRADE WOULD BE HURT

Canadian Industry Likely to Be Seriously Affected If U.S. Tariff Goes Through

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—The fishing industry of Canada will be affected seriously if proposed changes in the fisheries schedules of the United States tariff become law. This is indicated in a statement handed out by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The Hawley Bill, the statement declared, proposes increases in the duty against Canadian smoked fillets, smoked herring, dried and salted fish and boneless fish.

The statement set forth that:

"It will be remembered that the Hawley bill, so-called, has passed the House of Representatives and is now being considered by the Senate committee. The important changes in the fisheries schedule that are made by the Hawley bill are:

"Smoked fillets—the business in this has been carried on by Canada and bounds. They are being increased from 1 1-4 to 1 cents per pound. About 2,800,000 pounds were exported to the United States in 1928.

"Smoked herring have been increased from 1 1-4 to 3 cents per pound.

"Dried and salted fish has been increased from 1 1-4 to 1-3-4 cents per pound. Nearly 1,000,000 pounds were exported to the United States in 1928.

"Boneless fish, the duty on which has been increased from 1 1-4 to 2 cents per pound, will be seriously hit. Over 2,250,000 pounds were exported to the United States in 1928.

"Reports of the committee's proceedings, published August 1, show that some changes are proposed to be made by the Senate Committee, but it can be anticipated that these proposals would not minimize the effect on the sea fisheries."

COME REST, IN CLOVER

Oi there's wonderful fishing at Brentwood Bay!
And pretty, wild blooms in the woods, close by;
Where the trees their glory of leaves display;
And the gulls fly over.
The gulls fly over;
Oi there's blue in the waters, and rocks, green-grey;
Run down to the beach, where the fishing boats lie;
And the waves come in from out Bremerton way;
And the gulls fly over.
The gulls fly over and fill the sky!
Are you weary and worn, at the end of the day?
In Nature, with its hurry and and scurry, you sigh?
Come out to the fishing at Brentwood Bay.
Where the gulls fly over.
The gulls fly over.
The gulls fly over and fill the sky!
Here, the nights are cool, and the Milky Way;
With its thousands of thousands of suns away!
Bring you sweetest, repose at the end of the day.
Come, rest in clover,
Where white wings hover,
And the stars shine over and fill the sky!

—Kilbee Gordon.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of August 7, 1879)

Mr W. H. Ross, keeper of the Pacific Saltshore, died last Tuesday night. He came to British Columbia in 1862, and prior to that time had been partner on Hudson's Bay Company between Fraser and Cariboo. He was connected lighthouse-keeper in 1861.

A letter was received by the City Council last evening, asking the council to take steps to secure one or a continuation of Quadra Street through the Ross and Finlayson estates.

Agriculturists in the District near Victoria will meet at the hall at Saanichton on Saturday, August 11, the object being to discuss the lessons that have led to the existing depression in the produce market.

Passengers will be able to buy tickets at an up-to-date office, and an electric indicator will direct them to their platforms. FINEST CATTLE DISPLAY DUE

Exhibition This Year Will Have Fine Showing of All Classes of Stock—Largest in Its History

JERSEYS TO BE STRONG FEATURE

The biggest cattle displays yet seen in Victoria will feature the Victoria Fall Fair opening at the Willows, August 19.

Before the entry lists were out inquiries received by Ian W. H. Meams, secretary, indicated that this would be the case, and the rush of entries received since had been beyond any they had before experienced.

Special attention is being paid to Jerseys in this section of the exhibition. Here will be shown a complete community carload of this breed from Chilliwack. This carload is being cared for by Wesley McIntyre, T. Lister, A. Law and other well-known cattle men of the district.

R. & T. Naper will display some exceptionally fine Holstein bulls and cows in this department, while T. A. Danville will add to the exhibition of Jerseys with a carload of imported and home-bred animals.

SHORTHORNS

From T. Lamont, of Summerland, will come most attractive and some variety, while shorthorns from the Upper Mainland are also expected to be on view.

All classes of sheep, including Hampshire, Suffolks, Shropshire, Oxford—and Rouge Marie, Merinos, Ramboullets, Leicester and many other varieties will be exhibited.

Horses of exceptionally high standard, goats, swine, rabbits, poultry and other farm stock will occupy conspicuous places in the pavilion.

WINTER GARDEN REVUE

Starting the first evening at 8 o'clock the Winter Garden Revue will offer an unusual presentation in a tent opposite the grandstand.

New rides, special sideshows and refreshment stands will also be open to fair goers, while games of chance will be displayed in different parts of the fair lot.

From the standpoint of amusements the exhibition promises to outdo anything of its kind ever seen in the city, while the exhibition of stock, agricultural produce, handicrafts and culinary delicacies is expected to be greater, and of higher grade than ever before.

Friendly Help Association

Report for July

Mrs. A. Price, third vice-president, presided at the meeting of the Friendly Help Association yesterday. There were also present representatives of the ladies being away on holidays.

A letter from the Royal Trust Company had been received, informing us that the late John Alexander Virtue had bequeathed to our association the sum of ...00. This letter had been acknowledged and we deeply appreciate this wonderful thought of one of our ever generous contributors. Such kindly deeds are living memories of those who passon, and the influence of those lives continues.

Members of this association will assist with the collection to be taken during the concert arranged by the Arion Club for the benefit of the Victoria Aid Society on Friday evening of this week.

We are pleased to report conditions are still good and families doing their best to carry on. Several letters of thanks were read, expressing gratitude for timely aid given when work was scarce. The most serious problem we have to deal with is the deserted wife and family. We feel that something should be done to the man who leaves his wife and small children without maintenance. We have had two new cases this month. Nearly every day we have men and women call with their own peculiar problems. Each case is dealt with in as practical a way as possible, and they go away feeling quite satisfied with advice given.

We are deeply grateful to the manager of the Douglas Hotel for a generous donation of bed quilts. We sent twelve of these to the Social service Sunshine Camp at Sooke, B.C.

Eighty cases, representing 300 persons were assisted during the month of July. Thirty-four had groceries, thirty-two had milk, twenty-six had meat more than once, thirty-four had clothing, only two had fuel, five pairs children's shoes, thirteen had provisions from home, five had sundries, bed, mattress, per ambulance, electric iron, etc.

GIFTS RECEIVED

Cash—Mrs. McKenzie, J. Reinell, A. Fryer, C. Wilson, Victoria Wines' Grocery, Mrs. Gill, H. A. Owens, J. E. Painter, Miss Vinga, Jersey Milk, Limited, Oakland Dairy, James ...ayton.

AGED WOMEN'S HOME TOO SMALL

Reports at Yesterday's Meeting Indicate More Applicants Than Accommodation

Again the inadequacy of the accommodation at the Aged and Infirm Women's Home has been felt, and at the regular August meeting of the committee held yesterday afternoon, at the Home, reference was made in the reports to the fact that during the month just ended a number of applicants for admission had temporarily to be refused owing to lack of vacancies. One death among the residents having occurred during the month there could be, however, accommodation for one of those on the applicants' list.

In the absence of Mrs. Clay, Mrs. Lefeur, the first vice-president, was in charge of the meeting. Members present were Mesdames Grant, Gould, Leiser, Vincent, Reddy, Ralston and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Whittier.

The painting of the halls is still being carried on and will soon be finished and will make a big improvement to the interior of the Home.

Donations for the month were as follows: Jelly, Mrs. E. P. O. Fraser; clothing, Mrs. Wells; magazines, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Wells, flowers, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Hurlber, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. William Grant, Mr. Strawford, Pollock Bros., Victoria Floral Co. and the Society of Friends.

On July 15 the inmates were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Butchart at "Benvenuto." After a bountious supper, served on the lawn, those who were able walked around the grounds admiring the many beauties.

Messrs. Cameron & Caldwell supplied the transportation, arranged by Mr. Joe North, to whom the thanks of the committee and the inmates were expressed; also to Brown's Victoria Nurseries for corsage bouquets. The two large tallyhos left the gardens for the return trip after the occupants had given three hearty cheers and a tiger for Mr. and Mrs. Butchart for their generous hospitality.

Plucky Rescue From Drowning By Young Lad

IOCO, B.C., Aug. 6.—Leaping fully clothed from the top of the dock here into Burrard Inlet, John Cornwall, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cornwall, of Ioco, swam to the side of disabled Bodile Brothers' aged scow and saved him from drowning recently.

Bodile was bathing at Sunnyside Wharf. While trying to climb out of the scow, he fell from the wheel twenty feet, struck a log and rolled helplessly back into the water. His arm was broken.

Tenders Opened For Police Residence At Princeton

Tenders were opened in public yesterday afternoon by the Minister of Public Works for the erection of a residence for the police officer of the provincial force at Princeton. There were four tenders submitted. These were as follows: Reid B. McFadden, $3,987; W. M. Orr, $4,400; Mission Construction Company, $4,700, and R. Morgan, $5,250. None of the tenderers was present at the opening. These were all referred to the officials of the department for checking up and comparing before the award of the contract.

Section for League of Western Writers to be Established Here

The League of Western Writers, which was organized by Colonel Hofer, of The Lariat two years ago, has been advancing the interests of Western Canadian writers as well as those of the United States. Dr. Charles D. Roberts is a prominent member, and the Canadian representative on the executive is a Victorian. So far, there has been no organized local branch in this city. The work of the League supplements and supports that of the Canadian Authors' Association for Western writers.

In view of the big convention shortly to be held in San Francisco a meeting will be held at 637 Fort Street, at 6 p.m. today to form a local branch of the League in Victoria. All interested are welcome without obligation to join.

TO SHOCK WHALES

The method of electrocution is to be applied to whale hunting during the coming season in the Antarctic. The usual way of killing whales is to shoot a harpoon into the animal, and either let it tire itself to death by tugging the whale-boat, or to fire explosives to the harpoon. Both these methods are cruel, and to some degree uneconomic, because of the whale's great loss of blood before death.

The new method provides for a metal line attached to the rope connecting the harpoon with the whaleship. When the harpoon has landed in the whale, a strong electric current is sent along the line, causing immediate death. It remains to be seen whether the electric current affects the quality of the oil, which is the main object of whale hunting.

PLANS AIR CANDY DELIVERY

Marpherson Robertson, Australia, a confectionery king, has a plan for a fleet of airplanes to deliver his products to the cattle raisers in the remote parts of the country and to other in the more remote wilds of Australia. Although sixty-five years old he is as keen and as air-minded as many young men. When offered $13,500,000 for the business of which he is sole proprietor, Robertson refused. "What!" said he, "sell my job and land myself out of work? Not likely." So, dressed in the white uniform of his gigantic concern, he sticks to his sugar boiling despite the fact that he employs 2,600 hands and pays out nearly $3,000,000 annually at his nineteen factories near Melbourne. He is much interested in aviation, and gave $50,000 to Sir Douglas Mawson's present Antarctic exploration.

Y.M.C.A. EXPECTS TO BALANCE BOOKS

Canvass Will Be Made by Directors to Wipe Debt of $12,000 During Month of Next Month

Arrangements are under way by the directors of the local Y.M.C.A. to wipe the all financial difficulties by means of a canvass of individuals and large business concerns of the city during the month of September. This decision was reached by officials during their recent lunchon meeting.

It was brought out at the gathering that the financial obligations of the association have been reduced from $27,000 to $12,000. It was the opinion of those present that this remaining sum could be raised throughout the city without difficulty by staging a thorough canvass. If the amount can be raised, it will be the first time in the history of the "Y" that it has not had substantial liabilities on its books.

While the association's canvassers are patrolling the city, the directors will endeavor to collect annual donations from firms and individuals to help in the upkeep expenses.

The citizens of Victoria will be urged to help the "Y" directors in their canvass as this association is assisting in developing the youth of today into the men of tomorrow. Their annual Summer camp at Brown Lake, which just terminated last week, is something that hundreds of youths look forward to each year when school closes. The association carries for many young men and in town more or less down and out, and look after them in the best way possible until they secure a position.

During the meeting Mr. Edwin Tomlin, newly-elected president of the association, was installed in office.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

STAMMERING AND STUTTERING

Stammering and stuttering have a bad effect upon the personality and character and of all proportion as to the speech defect itself. A child so affected will usually be mentally retarded or at least seem so. He will be backward, shy, and show other anti-social characteristics and will have a tendency toward an inferiority complex. Mental difficulties and giggles of his school companions only add to an embarrassment that is already keen, and such a child is to be pitied when he is called upon to recite and tries his best to do so, only to be unable to correctly impossible, stats his sentences.

Stammering children often appear to be stupid and backward, when actually they may have brilliant qualifications. All ridicule and teasing at home should be carefully avoided, and sympathy and understanding substituted.

It is generally admitted that imitation plays an important part in the habit of stammering. Not all that the child hears its parents stutter and imitates, will tend to make him a stammerer.

It is interesting to note that at least eighty-five per cent of all children who stammer are boys. It is also interesting to note that many who stammer while talking can sing without the least impediment.

Stammering in children often appear of a neurotic and all stammerers are highly impressionable, nervous, excitable children who will stammer more during emotional excitement than they do ordinarily. Their trouble is worse particularly in social gatherings where they would most like to shine, and they retire, covered with defeat and laughter.

Teachers should give more unfortunate children the most careful attention and consideration. Unfortunately, teachers are sometimes so rushed with work that they may not have the time to understand the youngster. The child may be blamed for not knowing, when he knows perfectly well, but would rather be marked as "dumb" than go through the ordeal of reciting when others of his classmates laugh at him.

We always find that stammerers are in a state of mental haste and anxiety, which only impedes them the more. Sometimes the victim can only stand still, being totally unable to say anything at all.

Most of these youngsters have trouble with words or sentences beginning with W, B, P, T and D, and they may have trouble with their own names, or difficulty only with the beginning of sentences. They may stand and hopelessly repeat syllables.

While stammering is usually a habit spasm of mental origin and capable of being overcome, there may be other causes such as adenoids, abnormalities of the uvula, or an enlargement of the tongue. A cleft palate or wrongly formed dental arch, a defective sense of hearing, or a nasal obstruction may all be contributing factors.

INDIGESTION TORTURE

Pain and Suffocating Pressure Until Taeluz Brought Relief

Only those who are tortured by indigestion cramps after eating and suffocating pressure that seems to allay the relief, the joy, which came to Mrs. Odelle Langlois, as Taeluz freed her of every trace of Stomach Trouble.

For 20 years, she suffered "Food was like poison," she writes from Ste. Anne, Man. "Indigestion. Oh! It would cramp me and gas would bloat me so I could hardly catch my breath, and I would become dizzy and faint. I became so nervous and nervous that my daughter had to do my housework. I spent enough on treatments to buy a home, and almost broke my heart to think that I did not use Taeluz before. Because four bottles of this grand medicine made me a well woman. I could feel the very first spoonful helping me, and now after only four bottles, I have regained my health and strength. My husband also used Taeluz for Kidney Trouble and it has made a new man of him."

If you are suffering, don't wait. Get Taeluz today. It is pure and good—and it must help you or your money will be promptly refunded. It costs less than 30 a dose—less than 8c a day to get well. Ask your druggist. (ADV.)

MERRY-MAKING STOPPED WHEN BISHOP SPEAKS

ENGLISH CHURCH MISSION LAUDED

BLACKPOOL, Eng., Aug. 6.—In the midst of the merry making in the great ballroom of Blackpool Tower, one of the great carnival places of the country, last evening, the close of Bank Holiday, the music stopped and a clergyman mounted to the side of the orchestra conductor. The clergyman was Right Rev. Herbert, Bishop of Blackburn, who has been conducting an Anglican Church mission on the famous beach here for ten days.

He told the young men in flannels and the girls in all the color of Summer dresses, how pleased he was to see them enjoying themselves so heartily and innocently, and the young people showed how unmistakeably glad they were to find the Bishop interested in their pleasures. Then the band started once more and it was "on with the dance."

MINISTER SEES COAST FISHERIES

Hon. S. L. Howe Returns From Attending Convention of Canadian Fisheries Association

Hon. S. L. Howe, Provincial Secretary and Commissioner of Fisheries for British Columbia, returned yesterday from Prince Rupert, where he attended the gathering of the Canadian Fisheries Association. He was accompanied by Mr. J. P. Babcock, deputy commissioner of fisheries.

Mr. Howe says that his trip to the northern part of the coast was very instructive. He made it primarily for the purpose of examining the fishing centres along the coast and ascertaining exactly the situation with regard to them. It followed the journey to the West Coast of Vancouver Island, where he had the opportunity of seeing what was being done in the reduction plant and at the other aspects of the fishing industry.

The northern trip completed the investigation in a personal way into the fisheries, which he indicated he made in order that as the head of the department he might have exact knowledge relative to the various branches of the business.

Canneries were visited along the coast, where the opportunity was afforded to see these establishments in full operation. It was, he said, a most interesting tour, and he was able to add to his knowledge of the industry in a very material way.

At the Dominion gathering of the Canadian Fisheries Association Mr. Howe said he had the opportunity of meeting the heads of the fishing industry, and those deeply interested in that line of enterprise from all over Canada. The information obtainable was most valuable, and Mr. Howe returns well satisfied with the result of his investigations into the actual working of the fishing business.

An enthusiastic amateur motorcyclist was given a trial at a dirt-track meeting. He was plucky but inexperienced, and in the first race (over four laps), though he was an easy last, he went on honestly to complete a fifth. The feat was greeted with amusement and ironical applause. The rider drew up at the winning post.

"Have I won?" he inquired.

"Well, no," replied the judge, kindly. "As a matter of fact you were last in that race, but you're a mark in order that as the head of jags ahead in the next."

RURAL BLIND TO BE TAUGHT

Appointment of Field-Worker Announced Yesterday at "Benvenuto" Garden Party

LIBERAL BEQUEST BY VIRTUE ESTATE

The pathetic claims of the blind in the outgoing and isolated parts of the province are recognized in the recent appointment of Miss Sanderson, of the social service department of the Vancouver General Hospital, to the position of field worker under the direction of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Announcement of the appointment was made yesterday afternoon by Mr. C. Robinson, superintendent of the work in Western Canada, with head offices in Vancouver. Mr. Robinson was addressing the guests at the garden party held under the auspices of the National Institute at "Benvenuto," Tod Inlet, kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart, the former of whom is the vice-president of the organization. About seventy-five attended, including about thirty blind people with their guides. The Rotary Club gave generous assistance by providing the necessary transportation, and on arrival at the grounds the visitors spent an hour exploring the gardens before assembling on the terrace for tea. Meanwhile His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Mackenzie, accompanied by Mr. Robinson, arrived, and everyone was presented.

The brief addresses which followed lea gave many interesting kindelights on the work which is carried on by the National Institute for the Blind. Introduced by Mr. Butchart, Mr. Robinson, the Western superintendent, announced the recent appointment of Miss Sanderson as field worker, and explained how this would enable the organization to provide home instruction to blind people in the most isolated parts of the country, as well as in the more populous towns. Miss Sanderson, who is a trained nurse, is also an expert teacher of the Braille and Moon's type, the latter a form of embossed type specially designed for use by elderly people. She will also teach home handicrafts, such as knitting and basketry.

PREVENTIVE WORK

The general work of the Institute was explained, with particular reference to the preventive work which has in recent years become an important feature of the institute's programme.

In his reference to the financing of the work, Mr. Robinson mentioned particularly the generosity of this Government, which was furnishing the major portion of the funds at present available for the carrying on of the work, and the liberal bequest made by the late Mr. John Grieve, who had left to institute the sum of $1,000, free of death duties.

Premier Tolmie, in his brief address, showed great sympathy with the work, both in an official capacity and personally. It was a privilege to the Government to be able to assist such a worthy cause as the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, whose splendid work none would gainsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Butchart's characteristic generosity in throwing open their beautiful gardens was warmly extolled by Mr. Robinson in a little speech of appreciation, which was heartily endorsed by the guests.

Tea was served in the gardens, the tables charmingly decorated with sweet peas, and a programme of gramophone and organ music added to the pleasure of the occasion.

In the party which came with His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Miss Mackenzie were Lord and Lady Pentland, Lady Margaret Kindelight, Lady Constance Kindelight, Miss Cressy.

In conversation with Mr. Robinson immediately after tea, His Honor, who is honorary patron of the organization, signified his wish to lend an enthusiastic hand in furtherance of the work for the blind some time later in the season. The president of the National Institute is Mr. L. M. Wood of Toronto; the vice-president being Mr. R. P. Butchart, and the Western superintendent Mr. M. C. Robinson. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, during their stay in the city, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. McKenzie, Lampson Street, and tomorrow Mr. Robinson will speak at the Rotary Club meeting.

DIFFICULTIES OF N.Z. COME UP IN HOUSE

Explanation Is That Money Could Not Be Borrowed to Carry Out the Settler Policy

OPPOSITION WILL MAKE STATEMENT

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Aug. 6. — New Zealand's most unusual financial position was now before the attention of the House of Representatives (stated by Prime Minister Sir Joseph Ward, who outlined the difficulties of securing money abroad and declared that if the local money market had not been especially tight there would not have been enough money to carry out the Government's policy of advances to settlers. Sir Joseph, who is also Minister of Finance, said that when he took office a few months ago he found his predecessor in the Ministry of Finance had delayed making a decision on borrowing proposals for two months, though the Government was anxious to arrive at a decision. He discovered it was impossible to approach the London market for gilt-edged money, because of financial conditions.

The Minister of Finance, Hon. W. L. Stewart, from the Opposition side, insisted he had done nothing to hamper his successor, and promised to make a full statement later. The policy of substantial advances to settlers on a large scale was one of the most outstanding in programme on which Sir Joseph's Liberal Ministry went to the country in the general elections recently, dealing the administration of J. G. Coates.

PROMINENT MEN IN FISHERIES ARRIVE HERE

the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Captain Frederick William Wallace, novelist and editor; Mr. F. B. H. Paisley, of Ottawa, Mr. T. H. Jolicoeur, of Montreal, and Mr. A. Motherwell, chief inspector of fisheries for British Columbia, and others.

The party came south on the Prince George, and was greeted at Vancouver by Mr. Gosse, and by Mr. Hugh Dalton, secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. A visit was paid to Grouse Mountain.

At the dinner Mr. Gosse argued that only such number of salmon should be taken from the waters as are in excess of those required to perpetuate the run; only such number of men should be employed, so as can secure adequate return for their efforts, and capital should be restricted to that point where a fair return would be earned on the investment.

Mr. Gosse argued that, when the question of jurisdiction is settled, the Government should insist that fish which were to be processed, other than by freezing, should be processed in the area in which they are caught.

"Why do they always give a shower to a girl who is going to get married?"

URGES TREATY BETWEEN U.S. AND DOMINION

Present Conditions Are Source of Anxiety to Business Men of This Country, Says Dean P. E. Corbett

McGILL JURIST TALKS FRANKLY

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 6.—Adoption of a frank treaty between Canada and the United States, which will carry disputes of every character, was urged today by Dean P. E. Corbett, McGill University, international relations expert, today at the round table conference on Canada-American relations.

"Under present conditions," said Dean Corbett, "there are many gaps in the treaties as they now exist and certain questions are not at all covered by any treaty. The lack of such a treaty is a prolificant cause a sense of anxiety in Canada, especially among business men and those whose interests are affected between the two countries.

NEED FOR TREATY

"The text and the nature of the proposed treaty should be familiar to men in both nations. Then when a ship is sunk, as in the case of the I'm Alone, or a state or city refuses to cease violating an obligation as the case of the Chicago Drainage System, the man on the street will say, 'Yes, I know we are having a dispute with the United States, but there is a treaty which will settle the matter.' There is need for such a treaty to safeguard the feelings of the people. There are times when in Canada there is a great deal of antipathy against the United States."

African Line, at the entrance to the Hwang Pu River, near Woo Sung, Kiangsu Province, China. There were no casualties, although both vessels were slightly damaged.

GREAT NORTHERN BUS LINES SOLD

Control of the Northland Transportation Company has been sold by the Great Northern Railway to the Motor Transit Corporation and Automotive Investments, Inc., according to word received here by Mr. A. H. Webb, G.N.R. agent. The company will be operated under the name of Northland Greyhound Lines.

The Northland company, a $5,000,000 corporation, has been the bus-operating subsidiary of the Great Northern since 1926. It operates more than 3,300 miles of bus lines, chiefly in Minnesota, but also entering Wisconsin and North Dakota. In 1928 it carried more than 1,350,000 passengers, and its annual revenue is approximately $2,500,000. Its business and revenue for the first half of 1929 have been substantially better than in the same period of 1928.

One bit of carelessness on the highways and death marches towards you

Today far too much tragedy is thrust into the vacation season, because of accidents on our highways.

Most of these accidents are the result of inattention on the part of motor car drivers. Many of them are caused by inexcusable recklessness. Some happen because of mechanical defects.

Highway accidents are preventable. It is the public duty of every motorist to assist in preventing accidents. Car drivers can help by allowing nothing to distract them when driving, by never taking a chance at intersections or when passing other cars, by seeing that their cars are always in first class mechanical condition, and by exercising courtesy towards all.

The Ontario Equitable is vitally interested in highway accident prevention, just as it is interested in public health and welfare. To that end, it publishes this advertisement in the hope that, though Canada's highways may be crowded this summer, motorists will be extraordinarily careful.

SAFETY CARE COURTESY COMMON SENSE

To the end of July 1929, the new business written by this company was over 7 millions compared with approximately 4 millions for 1928.

Footwear Is Colorful

SOLID color shoes, no matter how gay, even to the extreme of vivid blue, green, red and purple, are entrenched in footwear fashions for certain dress occasions. Plain shades with deeper or contrasted trimming have had a long vogue.

Yes inventive and imaginative designers have created something still more different in the color realm. This is a chameleon shoe of kid with the attribute of changing color for its wearer according to the hue of the dress with which it is worn.

The modern note of this strap slipper is accented by a tiny pump and bow of brash kid which forms the division of the toe, one-half of which is parchment color and the other the fashionable sunset shade. The back trimming is of the brown kid and the leather itself is so treated as to catch whatever colors are placed near it.

This new idea is one which innumerable women doubtless will hail with delight, for the reason that when possessing such a shoe, it is not necessary to match up every bit costume with separate and distinct footwear. Just another manifestation of the current movement in the part of designers and merchants that paradoxically makes thrift and smartness of attire possible at one and the same time.

Linen shoes have witnessed a surprising revival this season. Plain linens are cleverly strapped and trimmed with kid, and in their various versions are considered among the most fashionable of shoes for spectator sports.

Slippers, pumps and ties of embroidered linen are very colorful, as can be noted from the illustration. The fabric is artfully cut so that a large floral motif of red fits perfectly over the toe of the vamp. Such shoes are exceedingly attractive when worn with silk mesh hose.

Embroidered linen shoes may be worn separately or may be completed by a coat and bag of the same material and pattern as pictured, a custome especially practical for summer traveling either by motor or boat.

Cabinet Sitting Decides Nothing On Appointments

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—The Cabinet met this afternoon but adjourned shortly before 4 o'clock with its work unfinished. The meeting was well advanced, it is expected that the ministers will conclude their work early tomorrow afternoon, when there is some probability of announcement with respect to important matters which have been under consideration for some time.

C.P.R. CONDUCTOR FATALLY INJURED

MOOSE JAW, Aug. 6.—T. D. Bryan, well-known conductor of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died today from injuries received on Sunday afternoon, when he jumped from a special train pulling into the depot and was wedged between the rail and the platform. Rain had made the platform greasy, and when he leaped Mr Bryan slipped and was caught by his clothing in the projection of the under carriage. He was dragged for some distance before Constable William Hunt could get to his aid. Hunt held him firmly between the platform and the rail as the train passed, and with the assistance of Alex Baker, another employee, prevented any part of Bryan's body being drawn under the train. It is believed that the conductor's back was badly injured when he was dragged by the train.

He. "Well, from the general trend of your conversation, I should judge not."

Father Saves Family From Burning House

WINNIPEG, Aug. 8—Rushing through flames three times, Tony Bobyski succeeded in saving his wife and four children when their home took fire today. Bobyski was nearly blinded by smoke and had just reached the open air with the children when the roof collapsed. The house was destroyed.

The pastor was examining one of the younger classes, and asked the question: "What are the sins of omission?" After a little silence one young lady offered:

"Please sir, they're sins we ought to have committed and didn't."

The handling of this deal brings out several points of good No Trump play. In order to develop the full trick taking power of his own and Dummy hand, Declarer must carefully analyze the situation and take advantages of every logical possibility.

SALIENT POINTS OF THE BIDDING

Auction: South and West passing, North bids a Spade, such bid being in my opinion preferable usually to an opening suit bid even with an unprotected suit, provided always that the unprotected suit is one of two or more cards. Had North bid three Spades to the King of Spades to set at once two tricks in that suit before his Heart Ace is driven out.

West permits the Spade King to hold, but when North continues with the Spade Jack, West wins with the Ace and returns the Heart 3. Declarer takes this trick with the Heart Ace, lays down his three Aces, Clubs and the Queen of Spades, giving up a Heart trick to the end to West's King.

Declarer thus makes three odd four Club tricks, one Diamond, two Hearts and two Spades, the result of careful play against excellent defense.

Copyright, 1929, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

Contract: North's one No Trump in his position (Third Hand) shows a minimum of at least 3 1-2 Quick Tricks and therefore the probability of five tricks in all. South, with a 4-3-2-2 type of distribution, together with 1 1-2 Quick Tricks and thus the probability of three supporting tricks increases the contract to two No Trumps, which North carries to three No Trumps, as his actual values (3 Quick Tricks) are greater than those shown by his original one bid.

THE PLAY

East leads initially the King of Diamonds, which North wins in Dummy with the Ace In order to later set another Diamond trick if needed. Following this Declarer plays the establishment of Clubs, the suit on which he holds the greatest number of cards in the combined hands.

Leading the Club 2 from Dummy, North takes the Jackin firmse, playing the 10 from own hand and losing to East's King. East now lays down his Diamond Queen (although such immediate play is open to question) but refrains from following with the Jack as he sees that to do so would give Declarer an extra Diamond trick, assuming that North bold originally three cards of that suit, a fair assumption in view of his No Trump bid.

East, therefore, shifts to his fourth best Heart, the 8. Declarer plays the 3 from Dummy, and West, playing the 4 which North wins with the 8. West's "duck" is obligatory, as North is marked with but two Hearts (East having led presumably his fourth best and thus for West to go up with the King would give Declarer, who probably holds the Ace-small, a winning finesse with the Heart 10 in Dummy, and thus three Heart tricks instead of but two.

North, now in the lead with the Heart 8 lays down his Club Ace. Both adversaries follow. North knows that another lead will pick up the outstanding Club but before making such lead and cashing his good Clubs, he lays down his King of Spades to set at once two tricks in that suit before his Heart Ace is driven out.

The handling of this deal brings out several points of good No Trump play. In order to develop the full trick taking power of his own and Dummy hand, Declarer must carefully analyze the situation and take advantages of every logical possibility.

Mrs. Sam Speers Tells How Cuticura Healed Her Baby

"When baby was three days old he started to break out with eczema. It began with small pimples which later festered and broke and then scaled over. When he was twelve days old he was almost entirely covered with eczema. The affected parts seemed to itch and burn so that I had to tie his hands on his hands to prevent him scratching his face.

"My mother advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. He seemed to get relief after the first treatment, and in two months he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Sam Speers, Innisfree, Alberta.

Man Severely Hurt in Fall From Ladder

Mr. Thomas Rutherford, of Martigold, an employee of the Public Works Department, lies in the St. Joseph's Hospital in a critical condition following a fall from a ladder in front of the old postoffice building on Government Street, near View Street, at noon yesterday.

Dr. J. N. Taylor, the attending physician, stated last night that Mr. Rutherford, who had failed to regain consciousness, was suffering with internal injuries, and a possible fracture of the skull.

According to eyewitnesses of the accident, Mr. Rutherford fell about fifteen feet to the sidewalk. He was engaged in repair work on the building at the time and it is believed that his foot slipped.

At an early hour this morning Mr. Rutherford was still unconscious with his condition generally unchanged.

C.N. Appeal on Grain Rates Is Not Permitted

OTTAWA, Aug. 6—Application of the Canadian National Railways for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court against the 18.34-cent grain rate from the head of the Lakes to Quebec City, has been refused by the Board of Railway Commissioners in a judgment made public today. The order of the board from which the railway sought to appeal was dated August 28, 1927, and disallowed the then existing rate of 24½ cents per 100 pounds on wheat and 23 cents per hundred pounds on other grains for export from Port Arthur, Port William, Westfort and Armstrong, Ontario to Quebec City. It directed the Canadian National Railway Company to publish and file in substitution therefor a tariff showing a rate of 18.34 cents.

Many Visitors Attend Royal Garden Party in London

The ideal weather made the Royal garden party seem exceptionally lovely this year, writes a London correspondent. Everyone missed the King, but, as it to make up for his absence, the Queen and the other members of the Royal family moved about continually and must have spoken with many hundreds of their subjects by the time the afternoon was over.

It was remarked that the Queen's charming gown of pale mauve was several inches shorter than Her Majesty has hitherto allowed. The Duchess of York wore a frock of golden flowered chiffon with a yellow hat to match, and walked about with the Duke chatting to all the innumerable people of whom she is fond, with that air of gentle interest that has won to many hearts. A large number of visitors from the Dominions were present. The High Commissioner, tells us that the list of names submitted by the Canadian office has grown out of all proportion to that of recent years.

The members were so great that meeting one's friends was more of less a matter of chance, but among those I noticed strolling about were Mr. and Mrs. Kernan, Lord and Lady Strafford, Lady Margaret Boscawen, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Macrenzie, Mrs. Lyons Bigar, Mrs. Greta Murray, Kathleen, Viscountess Falmouth, Dr. and Mrs. Primrose, Miss Anabella Murray and Admiral Sir Frederick Fisher, Canon and Mrs. Cody, Mr. and Mrs Bain and Miss McLimont, Colonel the Hon. Hesketh Bathurst, Lady Sligo, Sir Hamar Greenwood, who has not yet decided on his new title, and Mr and Mrs. Edgar Dugdale, very pleased with the engagement of their pretty daughter, Frances. Mr. Stanley Ferguson, eldest son of the Governor-General of New Zealand, Mrs. Dugdale, who is helping her uncle prepare his memoirs, tells me that Lord Balfour's health is fairly good and that he proposes shortly leaving for Whittinghame, his Scottish seat. The Hon. N. W. Rowell was chatting with friends his Baronet Wife, looking very attractive in a chiffon and lace frock and black velvet coat. Mrs H. D. Warren, Mrs. Grant Pepler and Mr. Warren, Mr. and Mrs James Scott, and Colonel and Mrs. Hunter Ogilvie were talking to fellow Transvaalians. Mrs. John Oliver, widow of the late Premier of British Columbia, and her son were chatting with Mr. and Mrs P. A. Pauline, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Greenfield were with the British Trade Commissioner for British Columbia. The grounds were looking wonderfully green in spite of the recent drought and the chairman of government in no wise affected presented to her the scene, for, though a few of the less considerate members of His Majesty's Government, including the son of the late Prime Minister, had thought it necessary to proclaim their tenets by appearing in morning dress. The presence of King Fuad and his suite, and the usual number of gorgeously-robed visitors from India, lent additional color to a scene already enlivened by the inevitable flowered chiffed frocks. The only members of the stage I noticed were Lady Tree and Gerald Du Maurier. Miss Gladys Cooper came in late after her matinee. One section of the guests amused themselves by trying to spot Labor ministers, which, another one heard nothing but discussion over the Government's policy. The presence later on in the evening must have left pleasant memories for Prince of Wales. Dinner at St. James' Palace, where he was a fellow guest with King Fuad of Egypt.

Among British Columbian visitors who were honored by invitations for the Royal Garden Party were: The Misses Burrie, Miss Betty Boultbee, Mrs. Charles B. McAllister, Mrs. Johnathan Rogers and Miss Messe Rogers, Mrs. W. F. Cochrane, Mrs. F. A. Walker (Vancouver), Mrs. M. H. C. Sansbury, Miss Kathleen Oliver, Mrs. Charles Oliver, Miss Jean Ross, Mrs H. B. Ross (Victoria), Mr and Mrs. J. R. Stirling (Salmon Arm), Mrs. F. Harvey (Nanaimo) and the Misses Hammond (Banff), and Mr and Mrs. W. McNeill.

A that success new dark green satin crepe that promises to be a popular Fall shade, the model follows the newest style trends. It uses Paris favorite diagonal treatment for the long bodice. What is in fact a seventy plain dress becomes a charming turned and surplicod back. Further grace is achieved by the tucks falling loosely into circular folds at the hem.

Throw Away Your Glasses and See Better

Practically every known eye trouble—even partial blindness—has been benefitted and cured by this new scientific method of treatment through the Great Sympathetic Nervous System.

Far sight, near sight, astigmatism, cross eyes, squint, cataracts—all have been successfully treated without medicine, operation, or optical aids of any kind.

Even though you have been told that you will never again be able to see satisfactorily without glasses, owing to permanent changes in the form of the eyeball, it is still possible for you to be cured—and see better without your glasses than you now do with them.

If you suffer from any form of eye trouble, call at once and learn how you can have comfortable, stationary vision—unhampered by glasses. It may mean so much to you.

Tennis Club Dance

The annual British Columbia tournament flamed dance of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club, which is to be held at Hamsterley Lake side on August 8, is expected to be one of the most brilliant functions of this year. Elaborate arrangements have been made, and it is expected that a large number of guests will be present, including a number of players from California and other points, as entries this year have been heavier than usual. These functions have been held for a number of years by the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club with gratifying success, but it is believed that this year's dance will be even better attended than any in the past. The management committee of the Victoria Tennis Club, in charge of arrangements, consists of Mrs. R. E. A. Dieppeker, C. Hugo Redmond and Miss Mona Maier.

COLISEUM "The Younger Generation." an all-talking and singing Columbia production adapted from the stage play, "It Is to Laugh," by Fanne Hurst, is now showing at the Coliseum Theatre. Pathos, love, humor and thrills are presented with rare understanding of human emotions. One of the greatest heart interest dramas ever made into a photoplay. Jean Hersholt has the stellar role. It has been pronounced the best piece of work this talented actor has ever done.

PLAYHOUSE Considerable action in the new Fox Film, "Marked Emotions," showing at the Playhouse Theatre, took place on the three-masted schooner, Golden Gate, a staunch craft originally built to battle icy seas of far North. The Golden Gate was anchored in Monterey Bay, Cal., during the picturization under the direction of David Butler and Kenneth Hawks. This was the ship used by "smugglers" in this thrilling screen drama in which George O'Brien enacts the leading role.

CAPITOL Jack Mulhall was ready THEATRE to sing before the microphone. It was for a scene in "Twin Beds" the First National-Vitaphone Picture at the Capitol Theatre today. The song was "If You Were Mine," a ballad written for the picture by Al Bryan and George W. Meyer, and a very pretty ditty, too. "If You Were ——" Jack started, in a rich Irish baritone voice, and the microphones started pipping in a dozen places, finally falling to the floor with a dull sickening thud. Then the prop boys explained that it was a trick microphone that "pops" to order for nervous stars.

COLUMBIA George Sieguann, THEATRE who enacts the role of the crest Simon Legree in the picturization of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the Universal masterpiece which is now showing at the Columbia Theatre, is suitably built to play the part of the heartless slave driver. He is six feet two inches in height and weighs 220 pounds. He is an all-around athlete. His portrayal of the famous epitome of villainy has marked him as one of the finest players of this type that the public has ever seen.

DOMINION In "The Awakening," THEATRE Samuel Goldwyn's newest sound picture at the Dominion Theatre, Vilma Banky, starred for the first time, plays a new type of role in which her acting is drawn upon even more than her rare blond beauty. Heretofore, in "The Dark Angel," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Night of Love," even in "The Magic Flame" and "Two Lovers" definite acting ability was demanded and acknowledged. In "The Awakening" Miss Banky becomes alive, vibrant, eager, intense, active—a great actress and a great role well met. Her beauty, for the first time, becomes incidental.

Holiday Traffic In England Takes Great Death Toll

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Twenty-five persons were killed in accidents on English highways in the immense holiday traffic of yesterday, a bank holiday. Seventy-five others suffered injuries. The weather was fine and the road casualty list greater than ever.

Among the holiday accidents outside these due to traffic was the double drowning at Mersley, where Kenneth Broad and John Broad, brothers, from Tunbridge Wells, lost their lives while surf riding.

FRENCH ACE KILLED

BORDEAUX, France, Aug. 6 — Lieutenant Bonnet, of the French Army, selected by the Ministry of Air to pilot the French entry in the coming Schneider Cup races at Calshot, Eng., was killed this afternoon when the plane in which he was training for the speed test, was wrecked in leaving the air field here. Bonnot was the holder of the world's speed record for land airplanes.

The Master Drummer Talks

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

This much, at least, to me is plain; Who doth permit, his end is vain.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit had found the master drummer over in the Green Forest. He was a master drummer beyond all question. Peter had found that this stranger was a Woodpecker, which, of course, meant that he was a cousin to Downy and Hairy and to Coddensing the Flicker. But he hadn't found out yet what the stranger's name was.

"If you please Mr Drummer," said Peter, when he got a chance, "you haven't told me your name yet."

"Haven't I?" exclaimed the stranger. "Now that's too bad! I am the Pileated Woodpecker. Some folks call me Logcock; some folks call me Black Cock-of-the-Woods. You can take your choice."

"Do you know what?" asked Peter. "What?" replied the big Woodpecker.

"I don't like either of those names," explained Peter. "I'm going to call you something different.

"What?" demanded the stranger.

"I am going to call you Master Drummer, for that is just what you are," replied Peter.

The big Woodpecker looked pleased. He was pleased. All right, said he. "That suits me.

"By the way, what does Pileated mean?" inquired Peter.

"That's a fair question," replied the master drummer. "Pileated means crested. You see what a big, red crest I have. So they call me the Pileated Woodpecker."

"I should think it would be a lot simpler and more sensible to call you just the crested Woodpecker," said Peter. "By the way, did you make that big hole?

"Just then who should come along but Jumper the Hare. "Hello Peter" exclaimed Jumper. "I see you found Log-cock the Master Drummer."

"Yes," replied Peter. "Do you call him Logcock?

Jumper nodded. "Everybody around here knows him as Logcock. I call him Logcock," said he.

"I've told him that I'm going to call him the Master Drummer," replied Peter.

"That's very good," replied Jumper, "but I guess he'll be Logcock to the rest of us. How about it, Logcock?"

The big Woodpecker nodded. "I've answered to that for years," said he. "what I guess I always will. Why, Mrs. Logcock hunted around" inquired Jumper.

"No," replied Logcock "but I hope she will arrive soon. She must have heard me drumming. I guess she is over to the Great Mountain where I left her. But I think she can hear me drumming way up there.

"Have you checked up yet in the Green Forest?" inquired Peter.

"That all depends on Mrs. Logcock," was the reply. "What she says goes. If she doesn't come soon, I shall have to go to look for her."

"I hope you'll find her and that you'll both stay here," said Peter.

"Thank you, Peter," replied Logcock.

Max Schmeling Takes One on Chin From New York Boxing Committee

All Arrangements For Sharkey Bout Off, Dukes Learn

Madison Square Garden Will Not Attempt to Stage Fight, Carey Tells Commission—Loughran-Sharkey Fight Is Mooted

SEATTLE, Aug. 6.— Joe Jacobs, the manager of Max Schmeling, German contender for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, declared here tonight that William F. Carey, head of Madison Square Garden, New York, had denied to him over the long distance telephone that he had erased negotiations for a Jack Sharkey-Schmeling fight. A dispatch from New York today said that Carey had announced that the bout, set tentatively for September 19, at Detroit, was off indefinitely.

Jacobs, who was in Seattle with Schmeling today as an exhibition tour, issued an ultimatum to Carey that unless he makes a formal denial to the statement credited to him, Jacobs will give the matter to Jack Dempsey. The German fighter's manager said to that case the bout between Schmeling and the Boston gob would be held in Agua Caliente, Mexico, either on Thanksgiving Day or early in December.

By Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The New York State Athletic Commission won a victory today in the long-drawn-out struggle to impress upon Max Schmeling the majesty of the boxing law. With considerable satisfaction, the fistic fathers brought "Big" Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, before them this morning and received its assurance that all negotiations for a match between the German heavyweight and Jack Sharkey had been broken off. Carey said he "might dispose of the property rights of Schmeling's contract," but was advised not to under penalty of disciplinary action by the board.

ACTION SURPRISES

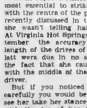
Carey's action came as a distinct surprise inasmuch as the Garden had indicated that it would defy the wishes of the commission and attempt to stage the match outside of New York, where Schmeling had suffered suspension and revocation of his boxing licence for refusal to go through with a contract to fight Phil Scott, for Humbert J. Fugazy, promotional rival of the Garden.

Arrangements to promote the bout at Navin Field, Detroit, reached a point where the Michigan State Athletic Commission recently set the fight date at September 19, and negotiations with the Garden, Fugazy in advantage, the commission shelved the application of Tim McArdle, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, for a licence to stage bouts at the Polo Grounds, home of the New York Giants. This unexpected move leaves the Garden promoter without a home for the "hottest" New York match of the outdoor season, the bout between Kid Chocolate and Al Singer, scheduled to take place August 29.

LOUGHRAN GO MOOTED

The battle of these two stars promises to draw a gate of close to $200,000, the richest plum of so far been season. The commission intimated today that Carey will get his licence if the Garden

Hit Your Ball With Centre of Club



BACKSWING ARC
DOWNSWING ARC

By SOL METZGER

When John Dawes Watson said it was most essential to strike a golf ball with the centre of the face, he was recently discussed in these articles (that he wasn't telling half the story. At Virginia Hot Springs late in September, the accuracy and great length of the drives of Olympia Collett were due in no small part to the fact that she deliberately hit with the middle of the head of her driver.

But if you noticed her method carefully you would be surprised to see her take her stance for this shot with the toe of her driver about back of the ball and not its centre. Because of this she caught the ball with its middle on the swing through.

Strange is such a result. Yet it is most natural when you think of it. You see your backswing is slow. No ventriflugal force is exerted. But on the downswing when speed is added the tendency is for the head of your club to pull away from you. Miss Collett allows for just that pull and thus makes the correct contact.

LAST MINUTE RALLY GIVES OAKLANDS WIN

Net Two Goals in Dying Moments of Lacrosse Game and Defeat South Park by 6-4

BILL PLATER IS LEADING SCORER

Johnny Johnston's Oakland stickhandlers took a one-game lead in the play-off series for the city championship and the right to meet Vancouver last night, when they chalked up a 6-4 victory over South Park at the Royal Athletic Park in a brilliantly contested battle. Three times the Park took the lead only to have the Oaklands come back in the last three minutes of the game, after previously tying the score, and run in the two goals which gave them victory.

The final game will be played next Tuesday at the Royal Athletic Park at 6.30 o'clock. A draw for Oakland will give them the title and a trip to the Mainland, whereas a defeat will necessitate another game.

Last night's battle was another of those keenly contested affairs marked by brilliant play on the part of each of the teams and excellent mind-reading by the respective goalies. In fairness to the attacking squads it might be said that each of the custodians had their share of good luck, for many of those are just the breaks of the game.

PLATER, CHAPMAN

South Park opened up on the attack and with better passing than their opponents made things look dangerous for Oakland. In Plater they had a dangerous player, who was the first to get through the Oaks' defence and sneaked a fast one past Pettinger after eight minutes of play. Oaklands retaliated four minutes later when Smith beat Banks with a long shot. The quarter ended with no further scoring.

South Park continued to have a slight edge on the play in the earlier stages of the second period, when Plater picked off goal number two when another of his close-up shots fooled Pettinger all of the way. Again Oaklands came back and L. Chapman travelled half of the field and sent a similar shot into the net behind Banks.

For the first time in the game Oaklands took the lead in the third session, when Nicol accepted a pass from Williams and, gave the opposing net custodian no chance with a stinging shot. Not to be outdone, Bill Plater came back and tied the score with his third goal for the night.

Cavin, speedy home man, gave South Park the lead immediately following the face-off, when he accepted a nice pass from Hardy while still on the run, and scored with ease. Pottinger never saw the shot.

OAKLANDS TIE SCORE

The fourth quarter was only in its infancy when Borda staged the hemp with the tying counter for Oaklands. With the score standing 4-4 the teams fought like Trojans for the winning marker. Three minutes from time Oaklands broke away fast and C. Chapman went in on top of Banks for one, only to be bullied drive John Taylor put the game in the melee one minute later when he beat Banks with a hot shot thirty feet from the goal. Grace Smith refereed and the teams were:

Oaklands—Pettinger, goal; Jack Taylor, Cockin, C. Chapman, Smith, L. Chapman, Borda, John Taylor, Williams, McKenzie, Nicol, Viggers, Merriman and Drysdale.

South Park—Banks, C. Bissell, Street, Jenks, D. Bissell, Brown, Slater, Hardy, Cavin, Taylor, Clark, McDonald and Atkin.

Barbutti's Charges Lacking, Union Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The case of Ray Barbutti, American Olympic hero of 1928, now under suspension by the Amateur Athletic Union, was revived today by disclosure of correspondence in which Avery Brundage, of Chicago, national president of the A.A.U., stated that after sifting the athlete's charges of irregularities among amateur competitors he finds them lacking.

The charges are this will not happen again and once in the 36-hole matches Von Elm, a proven performer, ought to go right on to the final stages before he gets him against Syril Tolley in the early rounds, a circumstance not at all unlikely.

HOT FAVORITE

The United States amateur draw is sended. Jones being No. 1, goes in the bottom bracket. Von Elm undoubtedly No. 2 player, will be placed in the upper bracket. Phil Perkins, former British champion and runner up for the United States crown, will, if he gets in under the immigration quota, be placed No. 3 in the upper half of the draw with Jones shunting Tolley, probable No. 4 man in the same half with Von Elm.

Jones fears no man over the 36-hole route in match play or a 72-hole medal play grind. But experience has taught him that strange things may happen in the early rounds of the National Amateur. He recalls very vividly how he had to take Dick Jones' dust up to the 15th hole in their match at Brookline. He is afraid of the golden fight Maurice McCarthy, Jr., waved with a 68 over 300, with the exception of English, who appears to be better on the home lot. If the Bears keep up their present pace they'll soon be so far in the lead as are the Athletics and it might be well to call the rest of the race off and get the world's series out of the way before Christmas.

This week, by the way, should be fairly busy. Tuesday, the Athletics have to fit in a doubleheader. On Thursday, they meet again at Shibe Park. If the Athletics take these games or two out of three, the Yanks might just as well start rebuilding for next year. If New York made a clean sweep, it would mean only that the team was still in the race, with an outside chance to make a flight of it. After this series the teams will have seven games left to play. If these games the Yankees chance would lie.

Chicago is not only worked up over baseball, but it is becoming fight conscious. That may be a queer thing to say of a city which drew the biggest boxing gate in the history of the world, but the Tunney-Dempsey bout was a special affair staged under favorable conditions by a promoter who knew what the gates had known.

Since then, good fights in this city have drawn about 11,000 people, but apparently they were always about the same 11,000. Now this Mandell-Cansoneri scrap intended the gate to 20,000 when it's your start getting that number of people interested, the financial aspects of the business becomes brighter.

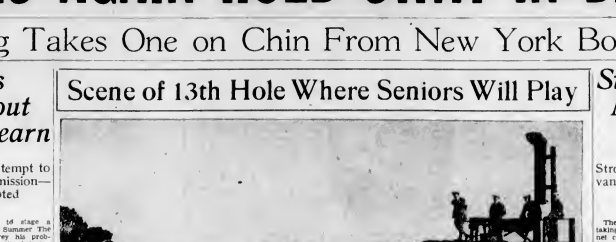
Dempsey seems to have introduced a new method of handling fights. I understand that he is arranging his first card for the Columbia, which he opens October 2. He hopes to have both Fields and Mandell on this first program.

Racing is another sport that has been booming in the vicinity of Arlington Park sticks so its determination to increase the total value of its purses next year to $600,000. Pals will be the richest of all the world for owners of speedy thoroughbreds.

One thing which may be said for Chicago is that it never has been happy to follow. Its heart's desire always is to be a front runner.

All those interested in sport in this city hope that Chicago will never Chicago the leading centre of boxing, golf, racing, tennis, golf and every other form of athletic competition, and are willing to lend the effort and money to accomplish their ambition.

Scene of 13th Hole Where Seniors Will Play



ABOVE is pictured the tricky thirteenth hole at the Victoria Golf Club, where the seventh annual championships of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association will be held from August 12 to 17. The hole is 174 yards and par 3. The tee shot has to be accurately hit to reach the elevated green, which is all alone in the left rear corner of the photo. The green is a large bunker which gathers in all the short straight drives. To see the green from the tee a person must take a glance through the actually recorded periscope. Up to yesterday, 156 entries had been received and all records would be broken if they continued to flow in as they have been lately. The record is 174, set in 1927. Forms have been received from Portland, Seattle, Vancouver, Tacoma, Yakima, Spokane and Boise, besides the large local contingent.

Straight-Set Wins Mostly Recorded in Net Championships

Strong Local and Outside Tennis Stars Advance—Ideal Weather Again Helps and Over Fifty Matches Are Disposed Of

The colorful 'international field taking part in the British Columbia net championships at the Victoria West Tennis Club, rendered exceptibly yesterday, but still the favorites continued to advance without undue pressure. Ideal weather conditions again favored the players, and over half a hundred matches went into dismissal before the shades of night began to fall.

The relentless sweep of the Cahill machine was again in evidence, but along with the Southerner the local contingent advanced and there is still plenty of Canadian opposition left in the field.

Casey, Driscoll, Berndt, Griffin and Gove, of California renown, went through straight-set matches in the men's singles, while in the women's division the redoubtable Miss Wizard and Mrs. Colds Kerson Gross went up another notch by the same route.

The strongest Victoria hopes remained in Marsh Gordon and Ross Hocking, in the men's division, and Marjorie and Hope Leeming, the McFarlane sisters and Mary Campbell, in the women's division. Not little in the women's. Vancouver also has a star of note in Cecile Ryall, who is figured to provide some stiff opposition.

MIXED MATCH CLOSE

Although the favorites held sway, there were plenty of matches to keep the spectators interested, especially the mixed doubles event between Hope Leeming and Eric McCallum and Mr. and Mrs. Sandoah, of Oakland. These four put on a terrific match, with the honors coming out victorious, 6-6, 6-3, 7-5.

This was one of the keenest displays of the whole programme and was intense with excitement. Long rallies featured the play, with the local pair having only the slightest margin of superiority.

In the men's singles Ray Casey, San Francisco, had no trouble in disposing of G. Hirschfield in two sets, the score being 6-2, 6-4. The former is a magnificent player, with a tremendous drive which has a tendency of finishing the net fully disputed rally.

Cecil Green had his work cut out for him when he opposed J. R. Kerr. In the score being 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, three of which ran to a deuce score at 5-5. The blond and final score going to Green at 6-4. This was one of the hardest contests of the entire day.

Ross Hocking, the Kingston Street Club player, had a three-set battle with R. Leech, of the Victoria Club. These players fought out two sets on Monday and finished the third set yesterday, when Kesson came in the winner, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2. Kesson was later defeated by D. M. Gordon, the 1928 winner, of San Francisco, best Jack Sharkey, 6-4, 6-4, and later disposed of the Yankee Clipper, 6-4, 6-4. Both games being well contested despite the small score.

Mervyn Griffin, San Francisco, advanced a little further countryman, Kyran Hynes in two sets, the scores being 6-4, 6-4.

MRS. GROSS WINS

Only one match of the ladies' singles was decided on Monday. This was a so Mrs. Gross, San Francisco, defeated Miss Hopkins, McFarlane, 6-2, 7-5. Miss King, Victoria, defeated Miss Mary Mac M. Campbell and Miss M. McFarlane all came through with scores of 6-1, 6-6, or 6-1, 6-2, or 6-1, 6-3. Miss King defeated Edith Thomas, 6-2, 6-3.

In the ladies' doubles Miss Miller and Miss Russell lost a great match to Miss Gross and Miss Tough by the score of 12-11, 1-6, 6-1. This match took over two hours to decide. Another splendid match in this class was won by the local ladies, was between Miss Lawson and Mrs. McDonald, of Victoria, against Mrs. Hagyard and Mrs. McNab, of Vancouver, the score being 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

The outstanding match of the mixed doubles event was between Hope Leeming and Eric McCallum against Mr and Mrs. Sandoah, a latter winning with a score of 6-4, 6-3, 7-5.

Two fine matches were noticeable in the men's doubles. Gray and Gove, the veteran doubles champions of California, defeated Mr. Pletz and Meraston, 8-7, 7-5, 6-4. Green and Hirschfield defeated R. Smith, of Tacoma, and J. G. Ryan, of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-4.

During yesterday's play it was noticeable that more than one player on the Victoria wider section, in several cases this fault took the form of a triple disqualification, beginning with the forward foot fault, the back foot fault, then jumping with a jump and ending as the racket met the ball, with the player being several inches too far forward.

Trumbull Says:

Chicago is anxious to become leading centre in sports world.

Yank-Athletic series this week will be important one to clubs.

By WALTER TRUMBULL
Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Frank Chance's Cubs with Tinker, Evers, Brown, King, Steinfelt, Overall and all those other diamond heroes of the past never roused more enthusiasm than the present Chicago Bears, led by Joe McCarthy. If any man also silly as to make derogatory remarks about this club in this vicinity the rabid rooters would wait for Hack Wilson to do his stuff. They would all be in there punching.

There is no doubt that the Bears are a great team club. Even John McGraw admits that they are a tough outfit to beat in their own. Their test will come when they strike the road again. But it looks as if they could be far enough in front by that time to have a fine margin on which to work.

The Bears have been getting hitting, fielding and pitching, and best of all, they have been showing that spirit without which no competitor can be a champion. Cuyler, Hornsby and Wilson have been batting over .300.

English and Heathcote have been hitting over .300, and Bejcher has been very little behind.

I am speaking of their recent averages, not of their season's work. Pat Malone, the ace of the pitchers, named, and Grimm besides, have been hitting well over .300, with the exception of English, who appears to be better on the home lot. If the Bears keep up their present pace they'll soon be so far in the lead as are the Athletics and it might be well to call the rest of the race off and get the world's series out of the way before Christmas.

Golfers Have Holes That Jinx Them

By AL DEMAREE

(Former Boston Pro, New York Giants)

It may be only a coincidence but every golfer has certain holes on his playing course, and the same can not play.

Even as great a stylist as Al Espinosa demonstrated this with his two amazing "jinx" holes on the par four hole at Winged Foot in the recent National Open.

Judge Landis has one of these holes on the course he recently met Pilmi, Mich. He has never taken less than three putts on it and plans to go back at intervals until he makes that hole behave.

Bad player are like golfers in that respect. Every pitcher has certain terms he cannot win in and hitters certain cities they cannot hit in.

Nobody can satisfactorily explain this phenomenon. Perhaps it is the subconscious mind remembering tragedies and defeats in the past.

SHARKEY REFUSES TO MEET CHARLES

Failure of Fitzsimmons to Advance $50,000 to Gish Stops All Chances at September 8 Bout

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—Floyd Fitzsimmons, Detroit promoter, refused to pay Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, a $20,000 advance for a fight with Pierre Charles, in Detroit, September 8 because the state boxing commission would not permit it he said today. Fitzsimmons announced he had a deposit from John Buckley, manager of Sharkey, that his fighter would be refused to meet Charles.

JACK SHARKEY

Following the Dundee-Fields welterweight championship bout here recently, for which Dundee, who lost the championship to Fields, received the full amount of his purse in advance, the state boxing commission ordered that no more fighters be paid until after the bouts.

Fitzsimmons said that he had asked for a deposit from Sharkey for a bout here in September, but the Boston sailor refused to sign unless Fitzsimmons paid $20,000 in advance.

The Detroit promoter said further that Sharkey refused to post a forfeit. As a consequence, Fitzsimmons decided, there will be no Sharkey-Charles bout here September 8.

SOCCER PRACTICE

Five Cs senior soccer players will hold a practice at Beacon Hill at 6.30 o'clock tonight. All players are asked to be on hand.

HILLCREST TAKE SOFTBALL LEAD

Defeat Pilmley & Ritchie in First Battle of Semis—Clash Again Tomorrow

Yielding a team with three of their regular absent, Pilmley & Ritchie, the "B" section champions, proved no match for the Hillcrest, "A" section winners, last night at Central Park in the semi-final of the city softball championship, and went out, 15-1, in a one-sided battle.

Dr. Poynts, who pitched for the winners, had the situation well in hand from the start to the end and Pilmley and his teammates never obtained well scattered. The Equipmen, who lost to the Ritchies twice throughout and was afforded excellent support by his teammates.

The winners took a substantial lead in the first inning when Fran Pilmley, Pilmley's backstop, flashed out a triple with the bases loaded and then proceeded to give his squad a four-run lead. Prom Pilmley was just a matter of how many runs Skipper Mulcahy and his aggregation would score. A few times the cyclemen threatened to score but their efforts were cut short by snappy fielding.

The second game will be played tomorrow night at the Victoria West Park at 8.30 o'clock, with Brice Hocks and Jack Pilmley in charge. If a third game is necessary, it will be played on the championship night.

The winners will meet Victoria West, the champions of the mainland, in the first of a three-game series for the city championship at Victoria West Park. Norris Kerr and Brice Hock will be umpires. This game will be played under the British Columbia Softball Association rules.

A second game will take place at Work Point Barracks on a date yet to be named. Winners of this series will meet the champions of New Westminster—Vancouver play-offs for the provincial title.

After the match the visitors were entertained to a dinner by the local club in St. John Hall, all having a fine time and wishing the Nanaimo Lawn Bowling Club every success. Nanaimo will play a return match in Vancouver on a date to be arranged.

RUTH HITS TWO HOMERS TO TAKE LEAD IN RACE

Favorites Advance In Third Rounds of Lawn Bowling Meet

Tommy Mayne Continues Brilliant Playing and Chalks Win Over M. Sinclair, 15-9—Ladies' Meet Gets Under Way at Burnside

Further wending continued yesterday in the Capital City lawn bowling tournament when the second rounds of the rink matches, doubles and singles were carried out on the Victoria, C.P.R. and Burnside greens. Many close matches took place in the three competitions, and many of the winners were forced to the limit by their opponents.

Tommy Mayne, of the Victoria Club, who upset the dope on the opening day by putting out Pete Johnston, of Burnside, last year's titleholder, continued his sensational playing and advanced to the third round by defeating M. Sinclair, of the Burnside Club, 15-9.

The Mainland representatives did exceptionally well in the doubles, and six pairs advanced to the next rounds with well-earned victories. In the singles the visitors also did well. Of the large number of Vancouver rinks entered, only two remain in the competition. Both rinks are from the Stanley Park Club and are skippered by Beaton and Johnson.

Giant Pole Extremely Rough With Wrestlers

MONTREAL, Aug. 6—Stanley Stasiak, the giant Pole who broke an opponent's leg in Toronto last week, succeeded in doubling no less doughty a grappler than Vladek Zbyszko, former world's wrestling champion, at the Mount Royal Arena last night.

After an hour and fifteen minutes of the wildest wrestling that a local ring has seen for a long time, Zbyszko succeeded in pinning his opponent's shoulders to the mat.

Then Stasiak played his trump and he lifted Zbyszko high in the air and hurled him to the mat with such violence that it took ten minutes to revive the former title-holder. The victory was Stasiak's third in a local ring, and all were gained in the same spectacular manner.

Scheineling Pleases Seattle Fight Fans

SEATTLE Aug. 6—Max Scheneling, Germany's offering for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, became a big favorite with Seattle fight fans tonight, when 8,000 persons wildly cheered him through a four-round exhibition. His smooth, swaying style against Hitler, of Germany, and Walker Smith of New York, met with favor. His other bouts, the first professional fighting Seattle has seen since Fred Cartwright died here last January, were headed by a four-round fracas between Del Wolfe, of Bellingham, and Jack McCrver, of Los Angeles, which ended in a draw

John Cameron Breaks Hammer-Throwing Mark

EDMONTON, Aug. 5.—Despite a little deplorable condition for an athletic meet, new record went by the boards at the annual Highland Games Association track meet held here today, when Chief of Police John Cameron, of New Westminster, shattered the former Alberta record for 16-pound hammer throwing held by himself. He hurled the hammer a distance of 166 feet 2 inches. The former record was 142 feet 1 inch.

MARY BEAR GIVES PUNTERS THRILL

Seven-Year-Old Nosed Out Favorite at Lansdowne in Return Lengthy Straight Five

VANCOUVER, Aug. 6 — Mary Bear, seven-year-old daughter of Moss Fox-Quartet, owned by Short & Lamb and ridden by Richardson, put the punters in good humor at Lansdowne track this afternoon, when she made the win at the head of her field in the first to pay off at $52.30 for each of straight tickets. BANKS SAVED MARKET FROM HEAVY SLUMP

Break in Wheat Prices and Chicago Exchange Break Felt Severely Till Funds Came

PRICES RALLIED LATER ON IN DAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Powerful banking interests came to the rescue of a tottering stock market today. Prices reacted sharply during the morning, as heavy selling was spilled into the market by a 12 per cent renewal rate for call loans, the break on the Chicago Stock Exchange and a drop in wheat prices but a sudden influx of funds carried the call money to 6 per cent in the afternoon, and prices rallied briskly, regaining much of their loss. The high renewal rate for demand loans caused qualms in view of the prospect of a further drain being imposed upon credit by an increase in the Bank of England's discount rate. Considerable nervousness was evident in brokerage house boardrooms until confidence was partially restored by the quick action of the banks.

That the sharp drop in call money resulted from action to bolster confidence rather than a normal easing of credit was indicated by the money rates, which followed a contrary course, very little money loaning at less than 5 per cent, even for some of the longer maturities. The day's industrial and business news remained largely favorable. The utility shares were particularly depressed. North American, Pacific Lighting, Consolidated Gas, Standard Gas & Electric, American Power & Light, and Stone & Webster sold off 4 to 7 points, but many losses were reduced before the close, the last two named closing about a point lower. American Waterworks was strong, selling close to its record. Detroit Edison dropped 27 points.

Rails were also generally depressed. New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio dropping about 7 points, although the former regained about half its loss. Atchison was a strong spot, mounting a couple of points to a record level. Steels were generally steady.

Coppers were heavily bought in the last hour, particularly Anaconda, which rose more than 3 points to 122, a new peak for the movement, on a turnover of nearly 400,000 shares.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease, although sterling cables held fairly steady at 4.85 3-16.

The bond market traveled over soft ground again today, although prices were a shade firmer than on Monday. Recessions proved to be mostly nominal in the standard issues and no extensive liquidation was in progress, but the underlying sentiment seemed to be unfavorable.

ARRANGE SPORTS FOR LABOR DAY

Cowichan Branch of Canadian Legion Has Plans for the Occasion Well in Hand

DUNCAN, Aug. 6.—The monthly meeting of the Cowichan branch of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, was held in the K. of P. Hall, Duncan, on Monday evening.

President Price called the meeting to order at 8.30 o'clock by requesting members present to stand in one minute's silence in memory of and out of respect for fallen comrades.

The executive committee could not see its way to make a grant to the Disabled Veterans' branch, seeing that the Cowichan branch by-laws lay down that assistance can only be given from the relief fund for the ex-veteran and his dependents who are resident in Cowichan Valley.

Other matters dealt with by the executive committee were approved.

A letter of thanks from District Scoutmaster Birchlager for a recent donation towards the Scout camp was read.

The prosperity of Cowichan Valley was noted by the fact that the relief committee had no report to make. The visiting committee had visited a veteran in hospital. Comrade Castle reported the outlines of the Cowichan committee, and hoped that a better report will be made at the next meeting.

Labor Day sports and dance arrangements are well in hand. All the programmes are drawn up. Comrade Dirom being in charge of the bicycle road race, which will commence at 11 a.m. A big entry is expected this year. A challenge cup for the senior race of eleven miles will be won outright, and will become the property of the winner if won three times in succession. Entrants will be able to obtain particulars from Philip's bicycle shop.

The sports in the afternoon should attract a huge crowd. A splendid brass band has been engaged and many visitors are expected up from Victoria district on excursion trains. Certain amusements will be provided, including the reading of a communication from a comrade at Lake Cowichan regarding the sports. Comrade Jarvis, chairman of the committee, appealed to members to assist generally in order that the grounds can be ready. Comrade Kinch, chairman of the dance committee, reported that the supper was in the capable hands of Comrade Willmott, and residents of Victoria will be coming up specially for the dance. The legion Labor Day dance has always proved to be one of the biggest successes of its kind for that reason. He also appealed for a fatigue party to prepare the hall, stating that sports and a dance cannot be arranged without much thought and work from voluntary workers, and it was up to the members to see that there was no lack of volunteers.

A notice of motion with reference to election of officers was read and will be voted upon at the next meeting.

Under a clause of the constitution of the legion that governs all matters affecting the interest and welfare of the ex-service men's dependents, a committee was appointed to investigate a complaint received regarding conditions at an outlying district, whereby at which a number of ex-veterans' children attend.

Of interest to Imperials was an item read from the official bulletin that the new Labor Government in the Old Country is proposed to remove the seven-year limit from date of discharge from the service for appeals for pension.

The meeting went on record that it thoroughly endorse the executive action of the municipality and member of commons in bringing up the matter of the price of gasoline charged in Duncan.

TAXI-DRIVER HURT IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Mr. F. Salvail Sustains Bad Cuts When Car Goes Over Embankment Near Bowser

BOWSER, Aug. 6.—Mr. F. Salvail, of Campbell River, driving for the Campbell River Stage and Taxi Company, met with an accident early this morning while on a trip to Nanaimo with five passengers. Coming down Roosevelt's Hill, about eight miles north of Bowser, the car skidded in some loose gravel and ran over an embankment. Mr. Salvail was the only one hurt. He received a fatigue party to prepare the hall, stating that sports and a dance cannot be arranged without much thought and work from voluntary workers, and it was up to the members to see that there was no lack of volunteers.

A notice of motion with reference to election of officers was read and will be voted upon at the next meeting.

Under a clause of the constitution of the legion that governs

Realtors Have Learned That Want Ads Pay

IN olden days the auction block was the common method of barter and exchange. Today classified advertising reaches a group of people who are interested in the thing advertised. You do not have to shout to a surly mob—many without funds; you talk to a select audience that is looking for investment opportunities. In this simple manner a score of realtors have increased their profits many fold. In this way agents have garnered in "leads" that never could have been obtained in any other manner. Try it, and prove that it never fails! Homeseekers look to our Want Ad columns for news of the greatest values!

Oregon—I've got a bottle of cod-liver oil in the cabin, and I was thinking it might be valuable to you, captain. I'd sooner save the ship with it than take it myself.

CUNARD LINER AFTER RECORD

ORIGINAL BOILERS WORK OVERTIME

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 — The Cunard liner Mauretania, still working her original Scottish boilers with which she was equipped when she was built twenty-two years ago, was steaming from Cherbourg to New York today at the rate of 27.46 knots in a valiant effort to recapture the speed record wrested from her by the new ocean queen, Bremen, a fortnight ago.

When the North German Lloyd flagship, on July 31 and 22, did 713 miles in 1 day-day-five hours, at an average speed of 29.6 knots, she broke a record that the Mauretania made back in 1911, and that had stood since—476 miles in a noon to noon run at an average speed of 27.04 knots. She is expected to arrive here tomorrow.

PILCHARD CATCH IS HAMPERED BY TURBULENT WAVES

TOFINO, Aug. 6.—Pilchard fishing this week off Clayoquot Sound has been poor, many trollers finding the weather too rough to make sets. Fog also hampered the fishermen's efforts. Salmon seiners report only moderate catches.

PROBE SECRETS OF ICE MENACE

DR. H. T. BARNES LEAVES HALIFAX TO CONDUCT INVESTIGATIONS

Parachute Flares Will Be Used to Discern Silhouette of Bergs

HALIFAX, Aug. 6.—Dr. Howard T. Barnes, of McGill University, left aboard the yacht Ditva on Saturday to investigate means of conquering the iceberg menace of the North Atlantic.

Sponsored by Mr. R. B. Van Horne, the expedition will make investigations in the 175-foot yacht at Bella Isle Strait and off Newfoundland.

Experiments will include the projection of parachute flares from a gun aboard the yacht in the direction of icebergs in order that their silhouettes may be discerned. The flares will be suspended for thirty seconds, and the light will be observed both with the naked eye and by a mechanical eye connected electrically with a loudspeaker. Other experiments will be made with submarine microphones, with which it is expected to pick up the distinctive sound made by escaping air from the underside of the icebergs. Further experiments will be made with different types of marine signalling apparatus.

Professor Barnes has made extensive experiments with an explosive, named thermit, which consists of an exothermic mixture of aluminum metal and iron oxide that reacts at a temperature of between 2,500 and 3,500 degrees Centigrade in a few seconds. With the explosion of this material a rapid evolution of gas occurs and is said to prove most effective in loosening and cracking the masses of ice. The first idea of using thermit occurred to Dr Barnes in 1924, when he was a guest of the United States Coastguard off the coast of Newfoundland, for he observed the loud cracking of the icebergs under the influence of heat derived from the sun in the early morning.

Experiments with various flares were carried out in the harbor of Montreal on November 26, when the harbor commissioners placed their yacht, the Sir Hugh Allan, at the disposal of Dr Barnes and Dr Faber, who shot up a number of their parachute flares, which were seen to generate a powerful light of 50,000 candles, but further experiments were carried out with a flare of 1,000,000 candlepower that could be projected a distance of forty miles, compared with the mile or thirty miles being fired.

Dr Faber explained at the time that it was possible to shoot these flares ahead of a steamer and that everything in their vicinity would be illuminated not by direct light but by its silhouette. While ships were proceeding through fog at night, photographic plates on which any silhouettes might appear could be rapidly developed and examined; should they be clear, the vessel could proceed at full speed, shooting up a flare every three minutes if making twenty knots an hour, or at longer intervals if going slower.

CHAPTER XXI

After breakfast Jerry went out to keep a morning's engagement as a model in some studio, and Martha, having taken a fresh resolution to put their business on its feet, and making plans, when the telephone rang. The voice that replied to her "Hello" was strange and seemed somehow foreign, though there was no accent to mark a nationality.

"Is this Miss Bundy?"

"Yes. Who is speaking?"

"I am Mister Tajima. I am in this hotel to ask an interview on a matter of business."

"I do not know you. What is your business? Are you an artist?"

"It is a personal business," said the voice, "and I hope you can grant me a few moments of your time. I promise you it is of utmost urgency."

"Very well," said Martha. "I will come down in ten minutes."

"Thank you," said the voice.

Martha finished her dressing, pulled her little hat tightly upon her head, and descended to the office. A small man, foppishly dressed, stood by the desk, and as he turned she saw that he was Japanese. He advanced smiling so that his white teeth glittered.

"Am I speaking with Miss Bundy?" he asked.

"I am Miss Bundy."

"I am Mister Tajima. Perhaps you do not see me before, but I have seen you, and that is my business today. I think there is a room there where two persons can discuss delicate business matters."

Martha followed the man with growing apprehensions. Who was he? What did he want with her? . . . Why should she feel alarm in his presence? What was his business?

He waited with a manner of some grandeur for her to be seated and then himself took a chair facing her, hitching it forward until his knees almost touched hers.

"I worked for a man you have dinner with," his said suddenly, "the night he became deceased."

Martha sat very still. The Japanese seemed suddenly to increase in size, to grow to expand like some wicked Jinni out of a bottle, until he filled the whole apartment. Then he shrank again to normal proportions, and she found herself looking into his face with its fawning, ingratiating smile. She could not speak at first. The shock of his announcement stopped the machinery of her mind so that reason did not function for a matter of minutes. After that she remained silent, of set purpose, for her subconscious defensive mechanism sprang to her rescue. She sat and stared at him, fighting to collect herself, to keep a grip upon herself, to form some plan of battle before it was too late.

"About whom," she asked presently, "are you talking?"

"I think you ask a question that is evasive," said Mr. Tajima. "Let us at this very beginning admit that we both know who this gentleman was." He accented the past tense of the gentleman. "There is a table set by me for four persons, two of the female and two of the male sex. I have most especially particular orders that it shall be a dinner of first-class delicacy, and I am regretful my preparations were never tasted."

"I think you have made a mistake, Mr. ——" Martha hesitated. "My name is Bundy."

"Precisely, and I assure you it was a very hard name to find and a very hard name to fit to the face of a young lady that was stamped upon my memory indelibly. For I saw that face but an instant in passing and without any suspicion whatever. But I have hunted and searched for that face, and then I have attached to it the name, and so I come to discuss business affairs with you."

"You have the wrong person," said Martha.

"I must beg the lady's pardon for contradiction. I come with kindly thoughts. No person knows that I see your face that night but myself. But many persons of official character would be pleased to know. However, I am under no obligations to official personages, and therefore I pay this early visit to yourself."

"But if you deny you are the lady in question, I am helpless, am I not? If the young lady does not wish to be aided and helped, I can only go to official sources and dilices what young lady I see coming out of my master's house on the night of his decease."

"What," demanded Martha, "do you want?"

"I educate myself," said Mr. Tajima, "and education come very expensively. I am a believer in reciprocating. Namely, I propose to be of service to you, and you, in your turn, can be of great financial service to me."

"You mean," Martha asked, "you want me to pay you money?"

He nodded. "I am very greatly in need of currency."

"And if I do not give you money you will tell some story to the police?"

"That," he said, "is an eventuality to be expected."

"How much money?"

"A reasonable sum. I have in my mind the amount of $25,000."

Re-elected in Preston by Big Majority

SIR WILLIAM JOWITT

Attorney-General in the British Labor Government, was re-elected without opposition in Preston by-election with a majority over his Conservative opponent of 7,446.

Martha laughed. Even as she did so she was astonished that such a thing was possible. "I haven't $50 in the world," she said.

"I will take the fifty on account," said Mr. Tajima, "and as an indication of your good intention. Then the remainder with all possible speed at your convenience."

"The very mention of such a sum is idiotic," she said with some spirit.

"Not for a young lady whose name is Bundy," said Mr. Tajima. "I have scrutinized the situation, and the family to which you belong is one of wealth and position and eminence. I feel assured they would let no such negligible sum bring a misfortune upon the daughter of the house. In short, you have only to ask your parent for the money and it will be forthcoming."

Martha rose at this firmly; she arose quickly to her feet and stood over the smaller bulk of the Japanese. "I will ask my family for nothing—nothing, do you understand? You may go to the police or anybody else with your story. I will never ask my father for a penny—no matter what happens . . . And the quicker you do it the better." She stamped her foot. "It will be a relief—a relief to have this awful waiting over with."

Mr. Tajima blinked upward at her and smiled his ingratiating smile. "It is this sudden surprise that has made you unreasonable," he said. "I go now, leaving you to reflect, but I shall come back in the hope that your attitude will have been swayed by mature judgment. And so I bid you good morning."

He bowed from the waist, turned on his heel and walked mincingly from the hotel. Martha found herself facing the door of the elevator without being conscious that she had approached it. She stepped into the car and ascended to her room, where she closed the door after her and locked it. She could not have told why she locked it. Then she stood, perhaps for ten long minutes, cold as ice, sick with dread, yet fighting for self-control and for courage to face the debacle that impended. Suddenly she walked across the room to the telephone and asked for a number. The response came presently. "Mr Blade's apartment, please," she said.

MILLIONAIRE IS SAVED BY ROOTS, BARKS AND HERBS

An Invalid for Years—Had Been Given Up to Die.

Everything That Money Could Buy Had Failed to Help Him

Read What Prominent Business Man Has to Say About "Keeno"

THIS MAN ALSO PRAISES KEENO

MONTREAL—The person to be envied is not always the one who has riches but the one who has good health. This is exemplified in the following experience recently told by a well known Montreal millionaire. He says:

"Before I took Keeno my stomach and nerves were in a terrible condition. I had to live on milk toast, broth and liquid foods. I couldn't drink tea or coffee and had to give up the use of tobacco. I was so thin that my cheek bones protruded and my clothes hung on me like bars. My steps were slow and unsteady and I was so weak that I felt like a good wind would blow me away.

"I had a pain in my left leg and my hands and knees shook like I had the palsy. I consulted with specialists and took treatments but didn't get any better. I spent a small fortune on my health but all to no avail. I went to several health resorts and took mineral baths but it was no use, finally my entire system collapsed and I gave up to die.

"One day a friend called and told me about Keeno, an old-time remedy made from roots, barks and herbs. I was ready to try or to do anything and so I sent to the drug store and bought a bottle.

"I took Keeno with the most gratifying results. Every day I steadily I began to improve. By the time I had finished three bottles my pains had subsided and my legs did not cramp or draw. I could also notice a big improvement in my stomach. I could eat food that I had not touched before in years. By the time I had finished my sixth bottle I was able to walk with the aid of a cane. I have not taken twelve bottles and am as well as any man in Montreal.

"My kidneys are now working normally and all the excess uric acid has been driven out of my system. I am so well that I am able to go to business every day.

"I am not giving this testimonial for gain but purely because I believe it is my sacred duty to acquaint the public with a medicine of genuine merit and one which I have every assurance will help those who are troubled like I was."

If you don't feel well try Keeno. It has helped others and will also help you. Keeno may be obtained in Victoria at the Vancouver Drug Co., Ltd., stores. (Adv.)
